Soviet Army Sweeps 20 Miles Nearer to Pinsk; Poles Ready To Negotiate Border Dispute

3 Holdout Rail Unions Accept 9-Cent Wage Award

Settlement of Nonoperator Case Lone Bar to End Of U. S. Operation

By Ben W. Gilbert

The White House announced last night that the three holdout operating railroad unions had agreed to accept President Roosevelt's 9-cent wage award granted the other two operating unions, thereby settling the operating wage dispute involving 350,000 employes.

Termination of Government operation of the railroads now was dependent only on settlement of the still tangled nonoperating wage case involving 1,100,000 workers.

The award gives the unions 5 cents an hour in lieu of overtime and expenses away from home, in addition to 4 cents an hour under the Little Steel formula and a week's vacation with pay, estimated to be worth another 2 cents on the average.

Notified by Pelley

The White House disclosed that J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, advised the President that the chiefs of the firemen, conductors, and switchmen had reached an agreement with the carriers on the wage award.

The President, who had previously granted the same award to the trainmen and engineers, informed Pelley that he was "happy to approve the disposition of the matter set forth in your letter and thus bring to an end the unfortunate controversy between the five brotherhoods and the carriers."

Other developments included:

1. Donald Richberg, attorney for the nonoperating unions, proposed to a special presidential panel that the nonoperating workers be paid a 3.33 cent to 7.25 cent sliding scale adjustment for overtime, in addition to the 10 to 4 cent sliding scale wage adjustment already approved, thereby providing a total adjustment of 13.33 cents for workers receiving 46 cents an hour, tapered to 11.25 cents for higher-paid workers.

2. Jacob Aronson, attorney for the railroads, informed reporters that he would suggest to the board today the adjustment the carriers believed due. A proposal that the wage dispute be settled for a total sliding scale adjustment of 10 to 9 cents, or possibly somewhat less, loomed as a likely management stand. Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson is believed to favor a 10 to 9 cent settlement formula.

3. A House Interstate Commerce Committee subcommittee approved legislation stripping Vinson of all authority over railroad wages. The measure would give the National (Railway) Mediation Board exclusive jurisdiction over railway wages, provided that any of its orders granting wage increases contained a finding that the boosts would not interfere with the stabilization program.

Settlement of the operating dispute has been delayed because of the unions' fear that the presidential 9-cent award contained language freezing their wages for the duration of the war. This question was settled by the inclusion in the agreement of specific language barring further consideration of overtime, expenses away from home, and vacations for the duration of the war, but permitting basic rates of pay to be opened at any time.

The vacation clause provided for arbitration of any disputes under the Railway Labor Act, instead of by the President as provided in the

Jack & Heintz Must Refund U. S. 7 Million

Army Says Good Record No Excuse For Profiteering

By the Associated Press

The War Department ordered Jack & Heintz, Inc., of Cleveland, Ohio, yesterday to reduce by seven million dollars the cost of aircraft parts it sold the Government during 1942, saying that the company's good record as a supplier "cannot be allowed to serve as an excuse for war profiteering."

The firm, said the Department, made a profit of $8,361,000 in fiscal 1942 before deductions for taxes, and this figure—"over 23 times what the owners had in the business at the beginning of the year and more than 35 cents on each dollar of sales—was deemed excessive."

To the extent that the seven million dollars call-back is not recovered by taxes, the recovery is to be effected through withholding of other amounts due Jack & Heintz.

President W. S. Jack of the company said at Cleveland that the decision found the firm short of needed capital and that "the Roosevelt Administration is flirting with

Labor Opens Fight on Tax Bill Provision

Opposes Order For Accounting to Bureau Of Internal Revenue

By Mary Spargo

In a special Saturday session the Senate will be faced today with a battle over a provision in the $2,275,600,000 revenue act requiring labor unions to make an annual financial accounting to the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Labor forces have been quietly marshaled for many weeks to fight the provision which got by in the House without notice, but was approved by a margin of only one vote in later Senate Finance Committee hearings.

Senator Lucas (Democrat) of Illinois has already announced he would move to strike this provision from the bill. He will have the backing of Senator Clark (Democrat) of Missouri, who asserted yesterday it would "needlessly harass" the organizations not now taxed to fill out forms.

Ignores President's Request

Ignoring the President's request for "a more realistic" tax bill, part of the Chief Executive's five-point program including national war service legislation, the Senate droned into tax questions yesterday, sweeping minor amendments out of the way in between lengthy speeches on other subjects.

Still open is the question of whether the Senate will agree to another one of the President's points—continuation of the present law to curb wartime profiteering by renegotiation.

Majority Leader Barkley (Democrat) of Kentucky said the renegotiation act would not come up for consideration before Monday. Just before the deadline the Finance

House Group Stops Federal War Ballot

Election Committee Reports Out Bill To Retain State Control of Vote

By Robert C. Albright

The House Elections Committee yesterday sidetracked the Worley compromise Federal war ballot bill and voted 7 to 5 to retain strict State control of armed service voting.

The House committee action delivered the most serious blow to Federal soldier vote procedure since the Senate last month left the question entirely up to the States.

Reported to the House was a bill following closely the pattern of the Senate Eastland-McKellar-McClellan substitute. It "recommended" that the States enact their own legislation facilitating service voting, and accept form postcards from servicemen in lieu of formal applications for State ballots.

Called "Ghost Bill"

Chairman Eugene Worley (Democrat) of Texas, who for weeks has been working for compromise Federal supervision, promptly denounced the committee substitute as "a ghost bill masquerading under the cloak of life and reality."

"The action taken by the committee means that most of the 11 million members of the armed force won't get to vote in the elections," he said.

"I wonder what the Marines at Tarawa, the Texans in Italy and all over the world, and the fliers over Germany will think of Congress if this is all Congress intends to do?"

But neither Worley nor Senate advocates of a uniform Federal ballot had given up hope of reversing the action of the Senate and the House Committee. With administration support, the Texan will take his fight to the House floor when the legislation comes up late next week.

Tydings Offers Bill

In the Senate, still another Federal war ballot compromise was offered by Senator Tydings (Democrat) of Maryland. Tydings' measure sought to meet States' rights opposition half-way by sending Federal war ballots to servicemen certified as eligible to vote by the Governor or Adjutant General of any State.

The Senate Elections Committee launched hearings on a Federal war ballot compromise in an effort to lay the issue before the Senate a second time. Besides the Green-Lucas compromise, like Worley's

Army Press Told To Skip Pictures Of Female Form

By the Associated Press

The Army advises its editors against depicting "the female form in Army newspapers."

"Within the continental United States," says a War Department guide, "this general subject is already so handsomely exploited by civilian periodicals that for the military to enter the competition would be like carrying coals to Newcastle."

But the writers of the booklet add:

"However, one cannot refrain from quoting briefly from a lengthy editorial salute by an Army newspaper at an isolated post in Alaska to a New York (burlesque) artist who has posed for special pictures for their small publication.

"'You are the bear grease on our lupin-root cakes. You are the seal blubber in our bowl of salmon berries. You are the liver of the caribou, the egg of the sturgeon, the young gizzard of the spring ptarmigan, etc., etc.,' is a touching acknowledgment of the fact that in the life of this isolated garrison, the likeness of the obliging young woman was more warming to the quonset hut than any mere coal fire."

Will Request Anglo-American Mediation in Arranging Talks

London (Saturday), Jan. 15 (AP).—The Polish government-in-exile, after four successive days of cabinet study of Russia's boundary proposal, announced in a conciliatory statement early today that it was asking the United States and Great Britain to bring Poland and Russia together to discuss all outstanding Russian-Polish problems.

[In Washington, the State Department announced it had received and was giving immediate attention to the request.—Editor's note.]

The Polish announcement, which in effect asked the United States and Britain to mend broken diplomatic relations between the Polish government in London and the Soviet Union, was hailed immediately in official British quarters as "an encouraging response" to the Soviet government's January 11 declaration suggesting the Curzon line as the Russian-Polish boundary.

"In their earnest anxiety to safeguard complete solidarity of the United Nations especially at the decisive stage of their struggle against the common enemy, the Polish government consider it to be preferable now to refrain from further public discussions," said the Polish statement.

Early Settlement Expected

Through the mediation of the United States and Britain an early settlement of the dispute is expected in London.

Asserting that they could not "recognize unilateral decisions or accomplished facts which have taken place or might take place on the territory of the Polish republic," the Poles said that they had repeatedly sought a just Polish-Soviet agreement.

"To this end," the statement concluded, "the Polish government are approaching the British and United States governments with a view to securing through their intermediary discussion by the Polish and Soviet governments with the participation of the British and American governments of all outstanding questions, settlement of which should lead to friendly and permanent cooperation between Poland and the Soviet Union."

Reply to Proposal

This was the Poles' reply to the Russian proposal that Poland accept as her eastern boundary a line projected in 1919 after the First World War by an Allied commission headed by Viscount Curzon, British foreign secretary. The Poles then rejected it vehemently and fought Russia and obtained a border 125 to 175 miles east of the Curzon line.

Measure Proposes Four to Share Top Military Titles

The United States will have two "admirals of the fleet" and two "generals of the armies" if Congress approves legislation to be introduced by its Naval Committee chairmen.

The four men slated to receive the titles are Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff; Admiral Ernest J. King, naval commander in chief; Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, and Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of staff to the President as Commander in Chief.

The titles are needed, Chairmen Vinson (Democrat) of Georgia of the House Naval Committee, and Walsh (Democrat) of Massachusetts of the Senate Naval Committee said "to place them on the same footing as their British counterparts" in matters of global warfare.

America already has one "general of the armies," the inactive Gen. John J. Pershing.

Facts, Not Preachments

Reds' War on Finns Bolstered Allied Cause, Army Declares

By the Associated Press

The Army takes the view that the Allied cause "would be weaker" now if Russia had not attacked Finland in 1939 and overrun the Baltic states.

An official guide book states this as a "military fact" without any attempt to pass "moral judgments" on Russia's action. The book was issued for the guidance of information officers, editors of soldier papers and personnel in charge of orientation courses.

One aim of the book is to impress American soldiers with the need for cooperation with foreign colleagues in combat. There is a caution to avoid "tale-bearing such as would create doubt of any ally."

Much of the advice is directed toward the Russian situation. The guide comments that "it is not necessary or desirable to defend communism in order to enlist the sympathetic interest" of the American soldier and that "though we do not agree with their political ideas (and they do not believe in ours) we believe utterly in the defense of the principle for which they are fighting," the right to determine how they shall be governed.

At another point, the guide says: "The ultimate military consequences are the best evidence of whether the USSR's 1939 attack on Finland and subsequent overrunning of the Baltic Provinces were barehanded aggressions, motivated by greed for territory, or were done to strengthen the USSR's western frontiers against attack by Germany.

"The possession of this buffer territory did greatly facilitate the USSR defense when the attack duly fell. Without attempting any moral judgments on the matter, it is enough to state the military fact that had the USSR not acted so, the Allied cause would be weaker today."

Of Britain, the guide advises:

"As long as the war continues, and as far beyond that as the years of reconstruction may carry us, no single condition seems to be more vital for victory and the ultimate restoration of peaceful and civilized ways of life than the maintenance of an uninterrupted friendship with England. . . .

"People who have their own private reasons for not liking the British should remember that this is not their private war and that, even if it were, Britain is not the enemy."

Yanks Advance Yard by Yard On Cassino

Resistance Fierce; Allied Raids Wreck Air Bases Near Rome

By Wes Gallagher

Algiers, Jan. 14 (AP).—American troops advancing yard by yard from the southeast slugged doggedly today at the maze of weapon pits, barbed entanglements and mine fields comprising the "Gustav Line," defenses of Cassino, Nazi stronghold on the Fifth Army front in Italy.

German resistance was fierce in this final 3-mile deep defensive belt before Cassino, and doughboys were forced to fight off a desperate enemy counterattack on the captured village of Cervaro on Wednesday night before they could continue their frontal assault. British and French troops fought in toward Cassino from the south and northeast, respectively.

The ground offensive was coupled with an Allied air blow at Nazi airdromes in the Rome area by American Flying Fortresses, Liberators, medium bombers and fighters. Three fields from which German planes have been taking off to intervene in the ground struggle were wrecked.

Airport Destroyed

Fortresses and mediums left smoking ruins of the modern Guidonia Airport, 15 miles northeast of Rome, and at Centocelle, 7 miles east of the Italian capital. The Fortresses and their Lightning fighter escort shot down 8 out of 40 Nazi planes that rose to challenge them, against a loss of 3 American fighters. Liberators blasted an enemy field at Perugia,

Allied Planes Raiding Berlin, Sweden Says

1400 Craft Blast 'Rocket Gun Coast' In Daylight Attacks

London (Saturday), Jan. 15 (INS).—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Stockholm said it had been learned early this morning that Berlin was "being raided" by Allied bombers, presumably British.

London (Saturday), Jan. 15 (AP).—A powerful Allied aerial force of possibly 1400 planes blasted military objectives along the "rocket-gun coast" of northern France yesterday and the German DNB news agency reported early today that the RAF had followed up with a night attack on Germany.

Hundreds of U. S. heavy bombers were included in the mixed aerial armada that struck the massive blow against northern France.

Making their first attack since the mammoth air battle over the heart of Germany Tuesday, the British-based Flying Fortresses and Liberators were escorted yesterday by Thunderbolts, Lightnings and long-range Mustangs.

Nazi Fighters Pushed Back

These shepherding planes pushed the Nazi fighters back from the target areas so that the bombing runs could be made almost without interruption.

In contrast to the Tuesday attack when a record number of 60 American heavy bombers and five fighters were lost and 152 German planes were shot down, Nazi opposition over the French Coast was light and preliminary reports indicated that the heavy bombers' escorting planes scored better than

Red Star Glitters

London (Saturday), Jan. 15 (AP). Gen. Constantine Rokossovsky's army in southern White Russia captured the important rail junction of Kalinkovichi and the nearby regional center of Mozyr yesterday, inflicting "tremendous losses" on the fleeing Germans, and forged on 20 more miles westward through the frozen Pripet Marshes, Moscow announced today.

Another Red Army under Gen. Nikolai Vatutin crossed the Horyn River, 46 miles inside old Poland, and extended its front in the area by the capture of Stepan and more than 30 other towns and villages. Stepan is 17 miles south of Tutovichi and 35 miles north of Rovno.

Both of these drives were advancing along the only two east-west railroads in Pripet Marshes. Rokossovsky's drive captured Skrigalov, only 40 miles from the old Polish frontier on the south bank of the Pripet River, as it rolled on toward the industrial town and waterways center of Pinsk, 95 miles away. The two railroads are 60 miles apart.

More than 40 other populated places were overrun by the White Russian advance, including the rail station of Kotsury, 16 miles west of Kalinkovichi.

Nazis Reported "in Disorder"

The Moscow communique said that the Germans retreated "in disorder" and that "a considerable number of prisoners were taken."

Vatutin's drive into old Poland gave the Russians a continuous front 85 miles long across the former frontier.

Vatutin's left wing, pounding south toward the Ukrainian Bug River and the Rumanian frontier, stood firm against reinforced and ceaseless German counterattacks.

Counterattacks Smashed

West and southwest of Novograd-Volyinski in the center of Vatutin's line advances were made after several German counterattacks were repulsed.

Mozyr and Kalinkovichi, 12 miles apart, were captured on the fourth day of an offensive that tore through a heavily defended area.

The Moscow radio reported Cossack cavalry were speeding over the snow-covered ground well west of both towns, cutting off the escape route of Germans fleeing from the bastion cities.

Kalinkovichi is particularly important as a junction on the Moscow-Warsaw railway and the Leningrad-Odessa line. Its capture, with Mozyr, cleared another sector on the north-south route between Zhlobin and Berdichev which the

Nearly 500 Japs Killed in Battle Near Borgen Bay

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 15 (AP).—In bitter fighting for control of strategic Hill 660, near Borgen Bay, New Britain, almost 500 Japanese dead have been counted by American Marine invaders in the two-day period ending Thursday.

The enemy death toll there now was almost 3000, and the presence of many shallow Japanese graves showed the enemy is having little time for anything except retreat.

Liberators ranged far over the northwestern sector of the southwest Pacific war theater Wednesday and Thursday in raids which hit Dili on Timor, Makassar on Celebes, Balikpapan on Borneo and the island of Ceram—all in the Dutch East Indies—and Keaukawa village in Duteh New Guinea.

1 Hour Now Minimum Charge Against U. S. Workers' Leaves

By Jerry Kluttz

Important new leave regulations which will effect every Federal worker were authorized in an order yesterday by President Roosevelt. The order was made retroactive to January 1 and it provides in brief: (1) All leave shall be computed in hours instead of the present practice of using days, hours and minutes. (2) The minimum charge that can be made against annual leave will be one hour instead of 15 minutes, with unavoidable or necessary absences of less than 30 minutes and tardiness being handled administratively. In other words, if an employe is a few minutes late or if he takes a longer-than-authorized lunch hour, he can be excused, required to make up the time at a future date, or else the time can be balanced off against overtime above the required 48-hour week.

(3) The minimum charge against sick leave will be one hour instead of half a day. Absences for medical, dental or optical exams can be charged to sick leave. However, employes will be required to submit a doctor's certificate for absences of more than three days but only if a doctor is available, in which event the employe can submit his own certificate. It won't be necessary, though, for employes to submit certificates for all sick absences over 12 days in any year as has been required. (4) The accrual of leave after separation or resignation won't be permitted. In other words, leave on leave won't be allowed. For example, if an employe quits and he has 25 days of annual leave he formerly would

Compulsory Military Training For All Boys Urged by Knox

Cleveland, Jan. 14 (AP).—To make certain "that our individual liberties will be preserved," Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox tonight advocated one year's compulsory military training "for every boy, when he attains the age of 17 or 18."

"There is no safety or peace in unpreparedness," the Cabinet officer said at a Boy Scout council banquet. "The unspeakable folly of the theory that we are more likely to resort to war, or become involved in war, because we are reasonably prepared against the danger of war, has been made so plain that few will be found to deny it.

Citing 25 per cent rejections by the Marine Corps for physical reasons, Secretary Knox asserted "we must in the future, spend more time, thought and money in improving the physical qualities of our people."

"Our first concern," he added, "must be care for children. This certainly should include frequent medical examination in the public schools."

A second step recommended by Knox "is to teach city-bred boys and girls how to take care of themselves out-of-doors. Indeed, I am not sure that scouting ought not to be made a part of our public school curriculum."

Know asserted such a system of military training as he proposes is in harmony with the democratic ideal.

"No one should be exempt," he said, "rich and poor, boys from the city and boys from the farm, boys of all races and religions, all should be made to shoulder a common responsibility of personal preparedness, as a shield for the future security of our country.

"Properly used, a year's service with the colors would provide for every young man, a chance to enjoy the benefits of occupational guidance."

Asserting now is the time to begin agitation for such a system of training," Knox said "if our people

Allies Push Ahead On Road to Akyab

Our Bombers Blast Japanese Bases in Occupied China

New Delhi, Jan. 14 (AP).—Allied troops, continuing their push down the western coast of Burma toward the Japanese base at Akyab, have advanced to a point four miles below captured Maungdaw, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters announced today.

Capture of Maungdaw, 55 miles northwest of Akyab, was announced by the Allied commander for southeast Asia on Tuesday.

The advance is continuing slowly, the bulletin said, with the Japanese counterattacking and holding tenaciously to strong points along the western foothills of the Mayu range.

Bombers Range Over China

Chungking, Jan. 14 (AP).—American medium and fighter-bombers ranged over much of Japanese-occupied China Monday, it was announced today, attacking enemy rail and river communications and shooting down one Japanese plane for certain and one probable and damaging three others.

A communique added that Tuesday all three of a force of Japanese bombers that attempted to bomb a U. S. Fourteenth Air Force forward base were shot down with no American losses. The raiders were accompanied by fighters.

Two American planes failed to return from Monday's operations, which also saw the destruction of three Japanese river tankers, two launches and other river craft on the Yangtze.

Today Mitchell bombers hit Japanese-occupied French territory on the Kwangchowan Peninsula, blowing up one vessel and damaging three.

4-to-1 in air combats with the Germans.

Light Bombers Harry Foe

At the height of the attack British Mosquito bombers harried the German ground defenses with low-level bombing and cannon attacks.

Medium Marauder bombers, more than 200 strong, encountered fighter opposition for the first time since mid-December and two tail gunners claimed to have downed Nazi planes.

Participating crewmen said that some of the German installations attacked appeared to be new—a sign that the Nazis still are building up their defenses in this area.

All day long the attacking force growled back and forth across the Channel.

Followed RAF Stab

The new operations followed an RAF Mosquito stab against western Germany Thursday night, the specified objectives of which also were not immediately disclosed. This was the first foray for Mosquitos since Monday night when they bombed Berlin.

With the latest attack the Pas de Calais department, which is the closest to England, has been bombed 21 times in 25 days, and in that period has been pounded by 7000 tons of bombs.

Crewmen returning from the day's operations said that black and blue smoke flashes marked hits on some of the targets.

Berlin Raises Claims

While the German radio today raised its claim of American losses in the big Tuesday air battle to "at least 200 planes," the U. S. Eighth Air Force demonstrated that by engaging in another operation three days later it was able to fill its ranks quickly. After a similar large loss of bombers in the Schweinfurt raid October 14 it was six days before the Eighth Air Force was able to conduct another major operation.

In the wake of the smashing American blow at three German aircraft factories Tuesday, reports published in Sweden said the Nazis now are able to produce only 1000 planes a month of all types although they need at least 4000. Allied bombing was said to have cut tank production to 700 monthly in the face of a need for 1200.

in 1939 by Germany and Russia, the Soviet-Polish border was established approximately along the Curzon line, except that it gave Russia large additional area near Lithuania in the north and a smaller extra portion of Galicia in the south.

Thus Moscow, while proposing that Poland accept a border she violently opposed in 1919, was suggesting that Russia give up some of the territory she acquired from Poland in 1939. Moscow suggested also that Poland add land to the westward by taking it from Germany.

The new declaration came after a cabinet session which lasted throughout Friday morning and was followed by another meeting between British Foreign Secretary Eden and Polish Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer.

Poles in London are hopeful that diplomatic relations can be established quickly so that the underground movement in Poland can be coordinated with the Red Army's drive, which already has carried far into the Poland that existed before the present war.

Sidelights of the War

7 Killed in 'Sneak' Bombing Of Crowded London Theater

London (Saturday), Jan. 15 (AP).—A lone enemy plane slipped through London's bristling air-raid defenses last night and dropped a bomb on a crowded movie theater in a suburban business area, killing 7 persons and injuring 31.

No alert was sounded, and there was immediate speculation that the Nazis have a new type of near-noiseless plane—possibly bombing from the stratosphere to escape detection.

It was the first time in several years that an enemy plane was known to have penetrated the elaborate coast defense or radio location system. Indications were that the raider was alone, said the British Press Association.

A nearby grocery store also was heavily damaged. Some thought the bomb had struck a girder and split in two before it landed inside the theater. More than 3000 were in the theater.

Ministers Killed

London, Jan. 14 (AP).—The Ankara (Turkey) radio said today that the Japanese and Hungarian Ministers to Bulgaria were killed in Monday's Allied bomber raid on Sofia, the Bulgarian capital.

Mechanical Nazi 'Zoo'

Moscow, Jan. 14 (AP).—A new expression, "The German Zoo," has found its way into the language on the Russian-German front as the Red Army advances past piles of wrecked Nazi tanks, guns and armament.

A Soviet war correspondent asked a sapper the way to a certain village.

"It's over by the German zoo," said the sapper.

"Zoo?" asked the surprised newsman.

"Yes; zoo," the Red Army man replied. "You'll find there six Tigers (Germany's largest tanks), three Panthers (medium tanks) and two Cats (tankettes)."

Ciano's Judge Killed

London, Jan. 14 (AP).—The Berlin radio, quoting a Milan dispatch, said Dominico Mittica, identified as a leiutenant general in the Italian militia and one of the Verona judges who sentenced Count Galeazzo Ciano to death last Monday, was killed today in an automobile accident. Count Ciano, Benito Mussolini's son-in-law, was executed Tuesday.

90 miles north of Rome.

It was at Guidonia airport that the Italians experimented several years ago with a jet propulsion plane supposedly similar to that just disclosed to have been developed by the Allies. The experimental buildings were heavily damaged yesterday.

Nazi prisoners taken in recent days boasted of the impregnability of what they call the "Gustav line" defending Cassino, a strategically situated town of perhaps 7000 population on the main inland highway and railroad 70 airline miles from Rome. They declare Cassino's defenses, which take advantage of high ground around the town as well as the banks of the Rapido River on which it is built, compare with similar fortifications in western Europe.

An Allied officer, reviewing the bloody fighting of the past 10 days in which American troops captured the villages of San Vittore and Cervaro just below Cassino, predicted that the battle now beginning would be harder still. Two crack German divisions are defending Cassino.

Gen. Alphonse Juin's French forces, advancing 2 miles on the Fifth Army's mountainous right flank, captured several more peaks and now hold all high ground north, northeast and southwest of the village of Aquafondata, 7 miles northeast of Cassino, and have outflanked the village of Viticuso to the southeast.

(A Berlin radio broadcast said the Germans had abandoned Aquafondata.

(Friday's German high command communique reported that a "heavy battle is in full swing" in the sector where the French opened their attack three days ago.

An Allied communique said New Zealand and British troops improved their positions near the Nazi stronghold of Orsogna, 12 miles inland from the port of Ortona on the Adriatic coast, and advanced some 500 yards.

A recapitulation by Allied headquarters revealed that more than 8000 Nazi prisoners had been captured by the Allied Fifth and Eighth Armies since the original landing in Italy last September 3.

(The German-controlled Vichy radio reported that the Eighth Army's artillery had become very active on the Adriatic front and predicted an Allied offensive there shortly.)

While Allied bombers were making temporarily useless the three big enemy air bases near Rome, other formations hit railway yards at Isola, 18 miles northwest of Cassino, and pounded the docks at Formia on the west coast. Warhawk fighters strafed three enemy merchant ships in the Adriatic and left one in sinking condition. In all, 10 Nazi planes were destroyed in air fights for an Allied loss of five.

Tito's Forces Battle Nazis In Coast Area

London, Jan. 14 (AP).—A pitched battle between Yugoslav Partisans and German forces was reported raging today near Karlobag on the upper Adriatic coast opposite the Island of Pag, recently recaptured by the forces of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito).

Tito's communique did not make it clear whether the Germans were trying to recapture the strategic island which flanks the Germans' seaward approach to Fiume or whether the Patriots had landed from Pag and were attempting to secure a beachhead on the mainland.

Farther north, the communique said, a fierce week-old fight was continuing for Novo Mesto, a railway and highway center along the upper side of the Trieste-Fiume-Zagreb triangle where Tito's men were on the offensive.

The bulletin also reported heavy fighting continuing along the 30-mile road between Banja Luka and Prijedor to the northwest in Central Bosnia. Here the Germans were increasing their pressure, but everywhere else, Tito said, the Partisans were on the offensive.

Tito announced outbreak of warfare in a new area, near Djevdjelija on the Greek-Macedonian frontier, where it was said 30 Bulgarian soldiers were killed.

Connally Studying Stiffer Strike Ban

Sent From Spain

British Find Bombs in Orange Cargo

London (Saturday), Jan. 15 (AP).—Time bombs hidden in cargoes of long-coveted oranges shipped from Spain have delayed distribution of the fruit in England, the ministry of food announced today, and the foreign office has asked the Spanish government to determine the background of the plot.

Britons, who now seldom see an orange or other citrus fruit and who have paid as high at $60 for a single lemon sold at a war benefit auction, were jolted harder by the news of the delay than by the word that the fruit was garnished with bombs.

Two of at least three orange ships were found to have secret caches of explosives.

An explosion destroyed between 200 and 300 cases, each containing 60 pounds of oranges.

An examination of the next ship's cargo revealed a time-bomb, and it was announced a third ship laden with oranges which has not yet docked will be carefully searched.

The bombs were of small type, probably not much bigger than an orange.

The bombs were believed to be the work of Nazi agents in the Spanish port of Valencia.

Law Should Apply To All War Plants, Senator Asserts

Senator Tom Connally (Democrat) of Texas, coauthor of the Smith-Connally Antistrike Act, said last night he was working on amendments to the law to bar strikes for the duration in any war industry.

Connally said that for some time he has been "exploring" various proposals fo rtightening the anti-strike law, now invoking criminal penalties only against workers who strike in Government-operated plants.

He said he has not yet prepared a final bill draft, but believes the law should be equally applicable to plants already taken over by the Government and to all strictly war industries.

Representative Howard Smith (Democrat) of Virginia, chief House author of the Connally-Smith Act, on Thursday introduced a bill in the House to outlaw all strikes during the war, and to deprive any local union of bargaining rights if their members are involved in a strike or work slowdown in any industry.

The Texan said his proposal "in no way conflicts with pending National service legislation" and to keep the two issues separate he may ask consideration of his own measure by the Senate Judiciary Committee. The Senate Military Committee is holding hearings on the President's National service recommendations.

The House Military Committee will meet Tuesday to discuss the Austin-Wadsworth National service bill.

New Fighter's Full Range Not Shown in Raid

By James F. King

The War Department yesterday praised those who for two and a half years kept the secret of the new Allied jet-propulsion plane, then it revealed the fact that the improved, long-range Mustang fighter can go even farther into Germany than it did during Tuesday's historic attacks on German aircraft factories.

The new Mustang fighter, the P-51, was described as having greater speed than the 400 miles per hour and higher ceiling than the 30,000 feet credited to the earlier model, as well as longer range than that of fighters heretofore in use. Despite its range, however, it still has armor, bullet-proof glass, leak-proof tanks.

Produced by North American Aviation Co., the plane is a single-place all-metal, low-winged monoplane, with a single tail and with conventional landing gear. It has a Packard-built Rolls Royce engine, with two-stage, two-speed supercharger, and is much heavier than the 9500-pound earlier models.

The jet propulsion secret was so well kept, the department said, that there was never any public comment or speculation on the revolutionary development although hundreds of persons in military and civilian establishments knew it.

The plane known during the years of its development as "Putt-Putt," "Squirt," "Hush-Hush," "Siberia," and "Super Secret," and still without official public designation—was built at a secret plant on one seacoast and tested on the other coast.

"The prime difference in the outward appearance of the jet-propulsion plane in contrast with others is that it does not have a propeller," the Army said. "Once when the plane was transported by truck from one testing site to another a dummy wooden propeller was attached, successfully cloaking its identity.

"When the first ship was ready for shipment across the continent for testing, it was disassembled by Bell Aircraft and crated in a single box. Military personnel, living aboard a caboose, escorted the craft. The plane and its engines have been protected always by a 24-hour guard system."

Haworth Fans Furnish Full Draft-Aid Staff

A staff sufficient to maintain the "Draft Aid Center," to be opened by Civilian War Services to help solve problems created by the "father draft," has been recruited from readers of Mary Haworth's Mail.

Enthusiastic at the response that was received to a letter to Mary Haworth requesting volunteers to man the center, Miss Dorothea Sullivan, one of the recruiters, stated yesterday that more than 80 applications were made. The response came to a letter published last Sunday. Most of the volunteers, Miss Sullivan said, had previous training and experience in personnel work.

Serving as a clearing house for information, the center will be equipped to answer questions on nursery schools, day-care centers and problems a family must solve in adjusting to the emergency created by the induction of fathers. Open daily from 2 until 9 p. m., it will take up offices in the U. S. Information Building, 14th and Pennsylvania ave., about January 24.

Armed Force of 11,130,000 To Include Many Prewar Dads

Selective Service yesterday in its first report to Congress on administration of the fathers' draft law set the planned net strength of the Army and Navy on July 1, 1944 at 11,130,000, and said a "considerable number" of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers must be inducted to meet it.

The report, presented by Lieut. Col. Francis V. Keesling, jr., offered no precise estimate of the number of fathers to be called, but suggested that passage of national service legislation recommended by the President would relieve draft pressure on dads.

Due to Induction Lag

The July 1 armed strength figure of 11,130,000 was disclosed for the first time. Previously total strength in mid-1944 had been tentatively estimated at 11,300,000, but 1943 inductions had fallen 300,000 behind schedule, largely due to the year-end lag in father inductions.

Consequently, the report pointed out, neither the Army nor the Navy reached its planned net strength for the end of the year. Instead of having a total armed force of 10,709,000, they had only 10,431,000 at that time.

To reach the new 11,130,000 combined figures by next July, Keesling said, 700,000 more inductees will be needed from all draft categories, plus an "unknown" additional figure for naval and military replacements. The replacement figure has been tentatively estimated at 100,000 monthly. If such a replacement rate continued, the total number of additional servicemen needed would reach 1,300,000.

Other Classes "Short"

"We believe," said the report, "it will be necessary to induct a considerable number of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers inasmuch as the number of nonfathers from among those reaching 18 years of age and those being reclassified from class 2-A, class 2-B, class 3-C and class 4-F under existing standards and policies will fall short of meeting such demands."

Selective Service belief that adoption of a National Service law would slow down the calls on fathers had previously been stressed by Senator Austin, (Republican) of Vermont, coauthor of the pending Austin-Wadsworth National Service bill.

Shift in Deferments

Said Selective Service yesterday: "Although at the present time many of the men now occupationally deferred in industry or on the farm are irreplaceable from the standpoint that there are no satisfactory replacements ready and willing to come forward and replace them, the message presented to Congress by the President recommending National Service legislation, if favorably acted upon by Congress, would provide the means of making replacements available for many of the nonfathers who are now deferred.

"To the extent that they are made available, for each nonfather who is replaced and inducted, one less father would be taken who would otherwise have had to be inducted."

The report gave no breakdown of the total 11,130,000 armed service goal set for July, but on the basis of previous plans for a peak strength Army of 7,700,000, the Navy's share by this midyear would appear to be 3,430,000.

55 Indicted In Racial Case Reject Bail

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Jan. 14 (AP).—Fifty-five Butler County farmers, vowing not to post bond as a protest against what their attorney called "an oppressive charge," were lodged in jail tonight on an indictment accusing them of inciting to riot in connection with the alleged ejection of four Negro families from an all-white rural district.

Another farmer, who said members of his family were ill, gave bail but promised his fellow defendants:

"I'll be back to join you in a couple of days."

A 16-year-old boy, included in the indictment, was turned over to the Juvenile Court and will be sent home.

The farmers marched in a body, accompanied by about 125 relatives and friends, to the courthouse where they surrendered to Chief Deputy Sheriff William Brent. The indictment is returnable in the April term of court.

Fourteen other persons still were to be served with bench warrants by Sheriff M. L. Hogg.

Six of the defendents, among them Ira Pearce, president of the Broseley School District and former county judge, also were charged with kidnaping, a felony carrying with it the possible penalty on conviction of capital punishment. Inciting to riot is a misdemeanor.

They were alleged to have forcibly restrained Oliver and Everett Clark in an effort to compel them to move the 13 Negroes off the farm of their father, W. W. Clark, near Broseley, 13 miles southeast of Poplar Bluff.

3 Unions Accept 9-Cent Award

agreement with the trainmen and engineers. Desired by the three unions to guard against further disturbance of the act's machinery, the clause was approved by the President after the other two unions approved the change.

Cancellation Awaited

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early told reporters that "the strike is off" as far as the operating unions are concerned, but the adjustments were not expected to go into effect until the unions notified the War Department that their strike threat had been canceled, instead of "postponed."

Questioning of Richberg by members of the special panel, composed of the same three men who handed down the original 10 to 4 cent sliding scale award, developed the possibility that the board members believed the sliding scale award was still open to review.

Arbitration Rejected

A presidential offer to arbitrate the dispute had been rejected by the nonoperating unions because the Chief Executive insisted on hearing the carriers' contention that any adjustment for overtime must be considered in the light of the sliding scale award, instead of independently.

Richberg restated that position at the hearing yesterday.

Aronson contended for the carriers that the board considered the "amount of wages a man takes home on Saturday night" when handing down the sliding scale award and hence would have to consider the effect on "take home" wages of an additional adjustment for overtime.

"We do not expect the board to sit in review of the graduated scale, or to consider substituting any other scale," Aronson said, "but in determining the issue, now, it would not be proper for it to close its eyes to what was done."

A Work Week Issue Injected

The board also injected the possible effect of existing union-management rules which have been interpreted as guaranteeing a 48-hour work week to railroad workers on any adjustment in lieu of time and a half for work over 40 hours a week.

Union chiefs denied that they were guaranteed a 48-hour week, although they acknowledged, that subject to dismissal on four days notice, most railroad workers are assured six days work of 8 hours each every week.

Aronson stated that railroad workers were now employed an average of 51 hours a week, with the last three hours paid for at time and a half rates.

Labor Opposes Tax Provision

Committee will meet to attempt to agree on a compromise. Amendments previously reported out by committee have been rejected by four minority dissenters led by Senator Walsh (Democrat) of Massachusetts, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee.

Amendments Scored

On both sides of Congress the Finance Committee amendments have been hotly scored as nullifying the renegotiation law and permitting a new crop of war millionaires to develop.

A compromise is expected not only because of the legislative amendments, but because a presidential veto of the revenue measure is regarded as a certainty if the war profit curbs are lifted to any appreciable degree.

The Senate's action yesterday on the tax measure was of comparatively minor importance except to the millions of women who annually purchase enough lipsticks, perfume, cold creams and face powders to hit astronomical figures.

Boost Cosmetics Tax

The Senate agreed to a 20 per cent tax on cosmetics instead of the present 10 per cent. At that the Senate knocked a nickel from every dollar in cosmetic taxes provided in the House bill.

Preparing for the renegotiation fight Walsh yesterday placed in the Congressional Record a list of 50 companies—by numbers only—who hold Navy war contracts, showing the percentage earned on their net worth after taxes in 1942 compared to earlier years. Of the 50 companies, 35 showed more than 50 per cent earned on their total net worth in 1942 after taxes, and 16 showed more than 100 per cent.

One company earned after taxes, in 1942, 595.1 per cent of its net worth.

a revolution" if it risks leaving employers without enough funds to assure postwar jobs for soldiers.

"I tell you they are coming home to the worst mess in the Nation's history," said Jack, who helped build up his firm from a shoestring and has operated on successful, if unusual, lines. The firm came into news prominence in 1942 when its habit of paying large bonuses to workers and granting other benefits on a lavish scale was studied by a House committee. The company defended such practices as a spur to production. (A secretary of the firm testified she had received $29,000 in salary and bonuses in one year.)

"It must be borne in mind," said the War Department yesterday, "that the company's business was financed principally by the Government which purchased its entire output. It is regretted that Jack & Heintz, Inc., has not seen fit voluntarily to conform to the mandate of Congress that war production shall not provide a source of excessive profits."

The Department said that more than 15,000 other cases have been handled without the necessity of recovery action as in this instance.

Later, Jack expanded his comments to say that, "during the year 1942 we voluntarily reduced prices on our contracts by more than $5,000,000, and during the year 1943 we made voluntary price reductions and refunds amounting to $37,000,000."

Grapefruit Canners to Get Subsidies

By Christine Sadler

Although details were held back, pending congressional action on the food subsidy question, War Food Administration and Office of Price Administration officials said yesterday they had agreed 1944 grapefruit juice will sell at 1943 prices and that canners will receive Government payments to cover increased costs of the raw fruit.

Under a "gentleman's agreement" with Congress, no new subsidy plan was to be announced during the holiday recess and until the legislators had made up their minds on subsidies. Technically, work on the question was resumed yesterday when a Senate Agriculture Subcommittee heard Senator Aiken (Republican) of Vermont explain his proposal for a food-stamp plan which he said could be integrated with a limited general food subsidy program.

The Vermonter estimated the plan would cost no more than 400 million dollars annually, which he said would enable 16 million persons living in families making $1100 or less per year to buy food at less than the usual retail cost.

Hit by Cost Increases

He specified old age pension recipients, families of service men, disabled veterans and low-salaried workers as hard hit by wartime living cost increases.

An objection of Senator Aiken and other Congressmen to the general subsidy program was that it benefited rich and poor alike, taxed "future generations" to pay current grocery bills of persons "plenty able to foot their own."

Cost of the grapefruit juice subsidy, which is part of the Government's plan to keep stable the retail costs of basic nutritional foods, has been estimated at around seven million dollars annually.

Retail Prices Undecided

OPA has prepared a news release setting prices producers can expect for their current citrus fruit harvest sold to canners, but retail prices have not yet been agreed upon except for grapefruit juice.

Thanks to a more bountiful supply of tin, however, civilians will get a million cases of canned orange juice this year and a million and a half cases of mixed citrus juice. Last year the entire allocation went to the armed forces.

Small cans of citrus concentrate also are expected to be on the market this year. WFA officials explained yesterday that while the concentrate might not be very palatable, it would be very rich in vitamins and could be used to good advantage in fruit juice mixtures. Great quantities of pectin are needed for war purposes, they explained, and the concentrate is a by-product.

Nonproducers Get Pay Bonus For Other Workers' Efficiency

A unique incentive pay plan, permitting certain groups of workers to receive increased earnings as a result of increased efficiency of other workers was approved yesterday by the War Labor Board by a vote of 9 to 3, with 3 of the four industry members dissenting.

Submitted jointly by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. and the CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, the plan provides for payment of a bonus to day workers based on the amount of additional earnings of workers paid an an incentive or piecework basis.

Workers paid on an incentive basis by Westinghouse are mainly production workers, while day workers are not production workers, but have jobs associated with the work of the production workers.

It was estimated the nonproduction workers would stand to earn 5 to 10 per cent more as a result of the stepped up efficiency of the production workers under the formula agreed upon. A total of 20,000 out of 120,000 employed by the firm are classified as nonproductive.

In voting for the proposal, Labor Member Robert J. Watt, representing the AFL, commented that the federation does not favor expansion of incentive wage plans, but was prepared to go along with the plan since it was a result of an agreement between the union (CIO) and the company.

The three dissenting management representatives were presumed to have acted to avoid creating a precedent for possible application to the General Motors and other cases where the same CIO union has requested similar adjustments.

Under the Westinghouse plan, the nonproduction workers will receive no bonus until the incentive workers' efficiency rating reaches a plant average of 115 per cent. A pay increase of slightly under 1 per cent for each subsequent 2 per cent increase in incentive efficiency will be paid, WLB said.

Two Ohio Representatives, Republicans Jones and McGregor, were in Naval Hospital yesterday.

Jones injured his foot in a fall from the steps of a train at Lima, Ohio, and had to have an operation several weeks ago. His secretary said a second minor operation now is necessary. McGregor's secretary said he would be on his feet next week after making unusually speedy recovery from an abdominal operation, his second within a year.

FBI Testing Signature of 'Hopkins Note'

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is now testing the "Harry Hopkins-Wendell Willkie" letter to determine the authenticity of the signature, the typewriter used, and the source of the White House stationery on which it is written, it was disclosed yesterday.

C. Nelson Sparks, who published the letter Hopkins claims is a forgery in the book, "One Man—Willkie," was again called before the District grand jury and after an hour was excused until the next session. No date for resumption of the hearing has been scheduled.

Sparks, one-time Mayor of Akron and friend of President Warren Harding, came to Municipal Court Building armed with a large envelope he said he was requested to bring to the inquiry. He refused, however, to disclose its contents.

The letter, with a purported Hopkins' signature, contains the statement that Willkie is going to be the "next man." Hopkins denied writing it and requested the Justice Department probe.

The letter was sent, presumably, to Dr. Umphrey Lee, president of Southern Methodist University of Texas. He denies receiving it, Sparks, however, insists the letter is authentic but refuses to disclose where he obtained it unless the disclosure be made before the grand jury.

The letter bears the White House official watermark. Henry Schweinhaut, special assistant to the Attorney General and in charge of the probe, said the paper was apparently authentic.

Hopkins has agreed to testify before the grand jury, but so far has been too ill to do so.

Legion Head Urges Draft Of Labor

Warren H. Atherton, national commander of the American Legion, said last night that speedier progress in winning the war demands enactment of a Universal Service Act now and expressed the opinion that preservation of peace in the future will call for keeping the law on the books so this country will be prepared against attack.

Speaking at a banquet which opened the eighteenth Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense at the Statler Hotel, Atherton declared: "The most cheering message we can send our fighting men is that this Nation has wholeheartedly adopted the rule of work or fight. That rule should have been adopted more than two years ago. Let's give the men in battle new courage and a renewed faith in this country by signing now on the dotted line."

Atherton denounced strikers as traitors to this country and maintained that "they are prolonging the war and blood of American boys will forever stain their hands."

Mrs. Lawrence Smith of Racine, Wis., chairman of the conference, presided at the banquet and briefly greeted the 700 who attended.

Speakers at today's session, beginning at 9:30 a. m., will include Capt. William M. Jones of the Army Air Forces; Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of the War Department Bureau of Public Relations; Dr. L. Wendell Fifield, pastor of Plymouth Church of the Pilgrims, New York City; Representative Walter H. Judd (Republican) of Minnesota; Representative Everett M. Dirksen (Republican) of Illinois; Mrs. J. Dr. G. R. Devitt, Boys' School Founder, Dies

Dr. George R. Devitt, 83, founder of the Devitt School for Boys in Washington, died Thursday in Florida, according to word received here yesterday.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 1 p. m. in Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw., with the Rev. F. Bland Tucker of Christ Church, Georgetown, officiating. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

A native of Maine, Mr. Devitt was educated in Canada. He did editorial work and taught school in New England before coming here about 20 years ago. He also engaged in newspaper work and was on the faculty of Western High School.

Shortly after World War I, Dr. Devitt established the Devitt School in Georgetown, later moving the campus to its present site in Forest Hills. He retired a few years ago from active participation in activtes of the school. At the time of his death he was compiling a history of the Devitt School.

Dr. Devitt moved to Florida after the death of his wife, formerly Miss Elizabeth Sylvester of New York in 1939. Their only son, George, was drowned in 1927.

Elbridge A. Stuart

Seattle, Jan. 14 (AP).—Elbridge Amos Stuart, 86-year-old founder of the Carnation Milk Co., and nationally known livestock owner, died at Los Angeles today, his office here announced.

Mrs. Jessie H. Price

The funeral of Mrs. Jessie Hilton Price, 83, who died Thursday night, will take place at 2 p. m. today at the home of her son, Lawrence H. Price, Barnesville, Md. The Rev. Guy H. Crook, of Takoma Park, Md., formerly rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Poolesville, will conduct the services and burial bill be in Monocacy Cemetery, Beallsville, Md.

Mrs. Price was a daughter of the late William T. and Rebecca Hilton and was a lifelong resident of Barnesville. Besides the son, she is survived by two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Mrs. Price suffered a broken ankle in a fall recently and her death is attributed to the accident.

Sister Anne Marie

High Mass will be sung for Sister Anne Marie, 38, of the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur, this morning at Villa Julienne, Dayton, Ohio, where she died early yesterday.

Her brother, the Rev. Francis E. Garner, J. S. headmaster of Gonzaga High School, and her mother, Mrs. George A. Garner, 9 K st. nw., were with Sister Anne Marie when she died. Another sister, Mrs. Elliott Dimond, left Washington to attend the funeral service.

Sister Anne Marie was graduated from Notre Dame Academy here. She entered the service of the church shortly after graduation. She is survived by two other brothers, George A. Garner, of the K st. address, and Pvt. Edward B. Garner, USA, and three other sisters: Sister Julie, O. P. of Rosary College, River Forest, Ill.; Sister Mildred Julie, S. N. D. Columbus, Ohio, and Mrs. Bernard F. Garvey of 3503 Patterson st. nw.

Mrs. Mary W. Conlon

Mrs. Mary Wilhowska Conlon, wife of George Conlon, a former District resident and noted sculptor of a bust of Gen. John J. Pershing, died recently in France, according to word received yesterday by Mayor Thomas F. Conlon of Cumberland, Md., brother of the sculptor. The International Red Cross relayed the message of her death.

William C. Burdett

William C. Burdett, United States Minister to New Zealand, died yesterday in Wellington, New Zealand, following an illness which became serious while he was en route to his post last September.

Appointed Minister last June, the 59-year-old foreign service officer was forced to spend a month in an Australian hospital, after he was taken ill aboard ship. Still in ill health, he assumed his duties in Wellington on November 25.

The New Zealand Minister entered the American Diplomatic and Consular Corps in 1919 and served in Mexico, Spain, Belgium and South American countries.

Before entering the United States foreign service, he was a mining engineer in South America and in Tennessee. He was wounded and decorated with the DSC, Silver Star and Croix de Guerre in World War I.

Frederick S. Jones

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 14 (AP).—Frederick Scheetz Jones, 81, dean of Yale College from 1909 until his retirement in 1927, died today at his home here. He was a native of Palmyra, Mo.

Mrs. Fannie E. Evans

Daytona Beach, Fla., Jan. 14 (AP). Mrs. Fannie E. Evans, about 80, a niece of the late John D. Rockefeller and the multimillionaire's hostess for 25 years, died here today.

Mrs. Majel S. Welch

New Rochelle, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Mrs. Majel S. Welch, 50, wife of James A. Welch, vice president of the Crowell-Collier Publishing Co., New York, died here yesterday. Mrs. Welch, the former Majel S. Mackintosh, was born in Washington, D. C. Also surviving are a son, Lieut. James R. Welch, USMC; her mother, Mrs. Bessie Mackintosh; three sisters, Mrs. E. R. Horton, Mrs. Carl Rosenbusch and Mrs. J. E. Pollock, and brother, Wheeler Mackintosh, all of Washington.

Court Upholds OPA Authority To Suspend Sales by Violators

By Walter Wood

The authority of the Office of Price Administration to suspend business operations of dealers who violate wartime rationing orders has been upheld unanimously by the United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, T. I. (Tom) Emerson, deputy OPA administrator, announced yesterday and he hailed it as a major victory for the price agency.

The appellate court, in the first decision of its kind, reversed the judgment of a Federal district court in Texas, declaring that "observance of rationing rules may as a matter of administration be made a 'condition' of participation in allocation as mentioned in the act," and said "temporary suspension is a proper enforcement of the condition."

The ruling came in the case of Foy and Amos Wilemon, operators of seven large gasoline stations in Dallas, doing business as the Good Luck Oil Co.

Coupons Involved

OPA accused the company of selling 4000 gallons of gasoline on ration coupons six weeks before the coupons became usable and ordered it to suspend dealing for two weeks. The gas-station operators, in turn, obtained a Federal district court injunction prohibiting OPA from enforcing its suspension order.

In granting the injunction last September, Judge William H. Atwell ruled OPA's suspension system was unconstitutional and described the administrator who issued the orders as a "modern instance of pure dictatorship." His decision was referred to extensively in recent criticism of OPA by the Smith committee investigating the power of war agencies.

Conditions Supported

In reversing the lower court's ruling, the Fifth Circuit Court, in an opinion written by Judge Samuel H. Sibley, confirmed OPA's contention that the suspension was not a penalty, but was part of the conditions under which the dealers were allowed to sell gasoline in wartime shortage era.

In its decision, the Associated Press reported the higher court as saying:

"It is true that the Office of Price Administration, like many other administrative boards and commissions, has put forth a great mass of regulations which look like legislation, and has established an elaborate system of quasi courts.

"We confine ourselves to the case before us. We do not think a penalty has been ordained or adjudged in such a sense as to require the action of Congress and a court."

Steuart Decision Awaited

Deputy Administrator Emerson has returned to Washington after arguing the case for OPA.

John Laskey, chief attorney for the District of Columbia OPA, said the question was substantially the same as that in the fuel oil case of L. P. Steuart & Bros. of Washington.

Laskey said Justice Jennings Bailey of United States District Court has indicated he expected to render a decision in the Steuart case in 10 days.

Flood Control Dams Called Postwar Task

Development of the Potomac River Basin above Washington through the construction of multipurpose dams is a postwar and not an immediate problem, the District Army Engineer's office and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission agreed today.

Although the commission authorized a special investigation of several tentative plans for flood control and other phases of the Potomac River problem submitted by the Army Engineers Thursday the study will be made to coordinate the postwar plans of Federal and local agencies with the river survey of the engineers, T. S. Settle, secretary of the commission, said yesterday.

There will be no emergency water supply problem for the Metropolitan area in the near future, Col. James M. Johnson, Army district engineer, said. His office was working on a survey of the Potomac River Basin, under an authorization by Congress made in 1936, so that plans for the highest use of the river resources could be in the blueprint stage by the end of the war.

It will take congressional action before any plan can be put into operation, Col. Johnson pointed out. Before the Potomac prgram reaches this point it is customary for the Army Board of Rivers and Harbors Engineers to hold public hearings so that all interested parties may present their views. In the meantime, Colonel Johnson added, his office was working with State, lcal, and Federal agencies in the development of several river utilization systems in order to reach a general agreement on the most feasible large scale development of the Potomac Basin.

CORRECTION NOTICE:

In an advertisement in The Washington Post of Monday, January 3, by the Bethlehem Steel Company it was stated they had built 388 fighting and cargo ships in 1943. This was an error. The correct number of fighting and cargo ships built by the Bethlehem Steel Company in 1943 was 380. Bethlehem Steel Company furnished the correct figure, which was erroneously transcribed. The Washington Post regrets the error.

Our Man Godfrey is Ten!

We just popped another button on our vest—because this morning from 7:00 to 9:15, Arthur Godfrey kids his way through his 10th Anniversary on WTOP.

We haven't used any trick formulas in these 10 years—we've simply presented a real personality with a warm voice and an unpredictable line of chatter that's humanly and deeply interesting because of its humor and sincerity.

Just to say "thanks" for liking our man Godfrey, you're invited to his 10th Anniversary Party to be broadcast from the stage of the Capitol Theatre tonight at 7 o'clock. We'd like to tell you about all the fun and surprises cooked up, but what guy having a party wants the cat let out of the bag?

Religion in the News And News in Religion

New York (INS).—Red Cross food-parcel crates were used by ingenious American prisoners of war at a German camp southeast of Berlin to construct parts of a church capable of accommodating 350 worshipers, according to information reaching this country from a neutral source.

Some of the spiritual and cultural activities of the American prisoners at Stalag 3B, Nazi camp where the largest number of Yanks held in Germany are interned, were disclosed today by the War Prisoners Aid Branch of the YMCA.

Based on a cabled report from its neutral delegate who visited the camp, a statement by the organization said American prisoners now are "settling down to camp life and a comprehensive program of leisure-time activities has been worked out."

The visiting delegate reported that "the whole community gathered together to construct the house of worship," which was described as having been "beautifully decorated."

He said the food crates were used to build the pulpit, altar, trellis-work railing dividing the altar from the rest of the chapel, and other interior fittings, and added:

"It is really astonishing what carpenters achieved with those little pieces of wood."

Over the entrance to the chapel and flanked by oil paintings of Christ is a large mosaic weighing 550 pounds, made entirely of glass and cement, showing Christ walking on the water. Above the altar, which is painted white, hangs a crucifix carved by one of the American prisoners.

The report said the Yanks also have an excellent library of 6200 volumes, most of which were supplied by the YMCA.

Natl City School to Hear Dr. Cranford

Christ Church in Alexandria Symbol of Fight for Freedom

Made by Special Permission

HALLOWED SPOT—Army Tech. Sergt. Rein Terpstra, instrument specialist, stationed at Bolling Field, is shown visiting historic Christ Episcopal Church, Alexandria, and worshiping behind Washington's pew. Sergant Terpstra, native of Kalamazoo, Mich., is of Dutch extraction. He has been in the Army three years

Historic Christ Episcopal Church in Alexandria, much in today's news because of a change in rectorship, has been a symbol of the fight for freedom—from the Revolutionary War to this global conflict.

In 1774, a year after the edifice was finished, Vestryman George Washington, in a Sabbath morning conversation with fellow worshipers, advocated withdrawal of allegiance from King George of England.

Washington declared he would fight to uphold the independence of the colonies. Nine years later, with independence won, he returned to Mount Vernon on Christmas Eve. Christmas Day found him in his familiar pew in Christ Church, hearing the Rev. David Griffith, rector, proclaim that peace and good will reigned once more.

Churchill Worshiper

On January 1, 1942, the first national day of prayer, President Roosevelt brought Prime Minister Churchill to Christ Church, where they asked divine guidance in the task of defeating those forces that would enslave man's freedoms.

Chrchill was attending his first war conference on American soil. The Rev. Edward Randolph Welles, rector, commemorated the occasion by having a silver plaque mark the pew in which the two Allied leaders sat. That was the first time that the visit of distinguished personages had been so commemorated since the coming of Robert E. Lee to Christ Church.

Lee, later to become leader of the Confederacy, was confirmed at the communion rail, July 17, 1853, by Bishop Johns. After services at Christ Church one April Sunday morning in 1861, several men from Richmond held a conference with Lee at the Georgian town house at 220 N. Washington st., where he was offered command of the Army of Virginia.

Lee's Pew Is Marked

The son of Light Horse Harry Lee, who lived at 811 Cameron st., a half-block from the church yard, Robert E. Lee is said to have played as a child in the former rectory of Christ Church at 407 N. Washington st. His pew was No. 46 in Christ Church, marked like Washington's with a facsimile autograph on silver.

Washington was a vestryman of the parish when the church was constructed, purchasing pew No. 60 for 36 pounds 10 shillings, the highest price paid for any of the first 10 pews sold.

Christ Church has been through two sieges. The first was in 1814, third year of the War of 1812, when the British sent men-of-war up the Potomac to burn Washington, shelling Belvoir House below Alexandria, on the way. The second siege was in the War Between the States, when the city fell into the Union army's hands.

Today the church attracts thousands of visiting men and women in uniform, who are admitted without the usual 10-cent charge. Although the building is maintained, with an attendant, at an annual loss of $1000, the shrine is kept open daily as a service to the Nation.

The Rev. Mr. Welles has resigned as rector, effective January 25, to become dean of Buffalo's Cathedral.

Bible Class Member Drive Is Extended

The membership crusade of the D. C. Organized Bible Class Association will be extended until Easter Sunday, April 9, it was announced yesterday by George E. Harris, association executive vice president.

Nearly 500 new members have joined classes since the drive began last October, while about 400 old members who had become lax in attendance have returned to classes.

According to Harris, the Bible Association now has 14,000 members in 200 classes in and near Washington. The annual Easter sunrise service will again be held on Fort Lincoln Heights, where between 40,000 and 50,000 worshipers greeted Easter last year.

Clarence Cooke of Calvary Baptist Church's Vaughn Bible Class, will again serve as general chairman of the sunrise program.

Palestine and Rescue Session to Open Jan. 30

The National Conference of Orthodox Jewry for Palestine and Rescue will hold a meeting January 30 and 31, at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York City, it was announced last night by the local Mizraci office, 232 Bond Building. Rabbi Wolf Gold, supervisor of the local Mizrachi office, is chairman of the convening committee.

McGarrahan to Appear At National Tabernacle

William "Bill" McGarrahan, well known for his dramatization of Bible stories, especially to children, will appear at the National Tabernacle, 6440 Piney Branch rd. nw., today at 8 p. m.; tomorrow at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., and daily at 7:15 p. m. in the coming week. He will be assisted by the Musical Ambassadors. The Rev. John McNeill, pastor of the Tabernacle, will speak today at 11 p. m. over the "Back Home Hour," on WWDC.

Congregation to Meet In Alexandria Theater

Because of a furnace breakdown, the Sunday school program at 9:30 a. m. and the worship service tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Christ Episcopal Church, Alexandria, will be held in the Richmond Theater, Alexandria. The early service at 7:30 a. m., however, will be held in the church.

Sociology Institute Set Today

The American Catholic Sociological Society will hold a social institute today at Trinity College, Brookland, the meeting taking the place of the annual convention, postponed because of the war.

DR. RYAN

Meetings will be from 9:45 a. m. until 4 p. m. The theme will be the role of the sociologist in the post-war world. Speakers will include the Rev. Paul Hanly Furfey of Catholic University; the Rev. Joseph J. Ayd, S.J., of Loyola College, Baltimore; James W. McGowan, executive secretary of the Stephen Foster Community Centers, Pittsburgh; Dr. O. E. Baker of the University of Pittsburgh, and the Right Rev. Dr. George Johnson, director of the Commission on American Citizenship. Dr. Johnson will be the luncheon speaker. Dr. John A. Ryan will preside.

Radio Bible Quiz Scheduled Tonight

Featured on the 146th session of radio's Bible Quiz will be a Bible knowledge contest between selected Bible students from the Army and Navy personnel tonight at 7 o'clock over Station WWDC.

This will be the Nineteenth Army vs. Navy Quiz, a regular third Saturday program. Both officers and enlisted men will participate. Evangelist Dale Crowley will be master of ceremonies.

Highlighting the broadcast will be special musical selections rendered by Chief Musician Homer E. Phillips, and by Mrs. Phillips.

High Military Mass Will Be Celebrated

A solemn high military mass will be celebrated January 30, at 10:30 a. m., at St. Cyprian's (Negro) Catholic Church, 13th and C sts. se., under the auspices of the Cadet Commandery and Drum and Bugle Corps No. 8, Knights of St. John. Many military and religious organizations have been invited to participate.

Former Pastor In Nazi Berlin To Speak Here

The Rev. Stewart W. Herman, jr., former pastor of the American Church in Berlin, and currently employed in Washington, will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle.

Mr. Herman is author of the widely-read book, "Its Your Souls We Want," telling the behind-the-scenes Nazi efforts to destroy the Christian Church. He was interned with diplomats and others at the war's outbreak.

Before coming here, he was on the faculty of the Hamma Divinity School, Springfield, Ohio. His father is pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, mother church of Lutheranism, in Harrisburg, Pa. His theme tomorrow will be "Europe, Christianity and Peace."

Pastor Ralph Tabor will address the Vesper Bible Hour tomorrow at 8 p. m. on "Blessed in Adversity," third in a series of studies in the Revelation. A comedy-drama, "Here Comes Charlie," will be presented in the chapel room Thursday at 8 p. m.

Dr. Henry to Speak

Dr. James M. Henry, provost of Lingnan University, Canton, China, and who recently arrived on the Gripsholm, will speak tomorrow at 3 p. m. at the Chinese Community Church, 1011 L st. nw. He also will be honored at a dinner there at 6 p. m.

"ROCK OF AGES"
AUGUSTUS MONTAGU TOPLADY

Rock of ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee;
Let the water and the blood,
From Thy riven side which flowed,
Be of sin the double cure,

Little Stories of Great Hymns

There are many versions about the inspiration of this great hymn—one, that Reverend Toplady, during a suburban walk sought shelter from a thunder shower under a cliff. But, whatever the birth-occasion, it has ever been the comfort of many, the world over, when danger threatens.

Keller and the scholars have a total of seven relatives in the armed forces

Churches Asked to Help Provide War Housing

New York, Jan. 14.—Because of the effect of the widespread housing shortage upon the home and the community, churches and church people are urged to cooperate wiht the National Housing Agency in its effort to secure housing facilities for warworkers and their families.

In an appeal sent to church councils and ministerial associations in 170 areas experiencing housing shortages, the Rev. Harlan M. Frost, executive secretary of the Christian Commission for Camp and Defense Communities, lists five ways in which the church and its members may assist the war housing centers established in each of these areas by the National Housing Agency.

1—Consult the war housing center manager and asked him to address one of your meetings and discuss with you the type of assistance most needed in your community.

2—List all vacant housing accommodations for warworkers and their families at the war housing center.

4—Make incoming families feel at home and a part of the full life of the community.

5—Encourage the development of indoor and outdoor recreational facilities for children and adults.

The Christian Commission for Camp and Defense Communities is an interdenominational body sponsored jointly by the Federal Council of Churches, the Home Missions Council of North America, the International Council of Religious Education, the United Council of Church Women and the General Commission on Army and Navy Chaplains. Through it the representatives of the various denominations plan and coordinate their services for men and women in uniform and for industrial workers. Projects are now under way in more than 700 communities over the country.

According to Mr. Frost, the War Housing Centers are operated with the advice and cooperation of War Housing Committee, comprised of representatives of local government, industry and business, churches, labor and civic organizations.

Under a recent modification of NHA policy those in the armed forces and their families are now provided with housing service by the War Housing Center.

Some of the problems faced by these committees are the difficulty in finding rooms for women workers and the reluctance of many home owners to accept families with children. Mr. Frost expressed the hope that church people would take an active part in directing the force of public opinion toward discouraging this discrimination.

Dr. Rayford Logan To Address Forum

Dr. Rayford Logan will address the Sunday evening forum tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Calvary Methodist Church on "Subject Peoples in the Postwar World." These forums on "The Crusade for a New World Order" are being held Sundays in January and are open to the public.

Nephew of Ex-Sen. Hale Killed; 2 Marines Wounded in Pacific

A gold star will be added to the service flag of Covenant-Presbyterian Church at a special ceremony tomorrow at 11 a. m., in honor of Pfc. Donald Cameron Hale, 41, USA, nephew of former U. S. Senator Frederick Hale of Maine, whom the War Department listed yesterday as killed in action in Italy December 5.

HALE

At the same time, the Navy Department reported that Pvt. Harold L. Cain of 4350 Gallatin st., Hyattsville, Md., and Warrant Officer Frederick T. Roberts of 1040 Otis st. ne., were wounded while serving with the Marine Corps in the Pacific.

Private Hale was the son of Mrs. Chandler Hale of 3147 P st. nw., who has been prominent in Washington society for the past 50 years. His father, Chandler Hale, former Third Assistant Secretary of State, lives at the Metropolitan Club. He was a grandson of the late Senator J. Donald Cameron of Pennsylvania and the late Senator Eugene Hale, and a great-grandson of the late Senator Zachariah Chandler.

Born in the United States Legation in Vienna, where his father was secretary, Private Hale attended St. Paul's School at Concord, N. H., and Harvard University.

He was trust officer with the Marine Midland Bank in New York and resigned his position in June, 1940, to enlist in the Canadian Black Watch. He transferred to the American Army after Pearl Harbor and saw action in North Africa and Salerno.

Other survivors include a sister, Mrs. Howland G. Chase of Washington and a brother, Chandler Hale, jr., of Santa Fe, N. Mex.

Private Cain, 19, was wounded November 22 during the landing at Bougainville, he had informed his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Cain of the Gallatin st. address.

Warrant Officer Roberts, 32, who made his home with his sister, Mrs. Mary R. Haines, received chest wounds when struck by a Japanese grenade while serving in the South Pacific last October.

Local Budget

The wartime boom has filled the coffers of many State and local governments. The District is no exception. If Congress approves the local budget submitted to it this week, the District will not only end the next fiscal year free of debt for the first time in 13 years; it will also have a reserve fund of three million dollars salted away for essential public works as soon as the war is over. Elimination of the debt and laying up of surpluses are unquestionably sound policy in a period when revenue is high and materials and manpower are scarce. There still remains, however, the question of whether current needs are being met.

Not much light is thrown upon this latter problem by the flat statement that the local budget estimates for 1945 exceed appropriations this year by more than 11 million dollars. Roughly four million of this is accounted for by overtime and additional compensation. A substantial increase was allowed the schools, chiefly for sites that must be purchased now if an orderly program of school building is to be carried out postwar. On the whole, the Commissioners were very conservative in making their estimates—so conservative, in fact, that some aspects of community service will continue to be ignored. It is well to remember that even maintenance of satisfactory municipal service in a city that has grown as rapidly as has Washington in the last two years requires rather sharply rising expenditures. Allowance must also be made for rising prices.

The bare figures show, for example, an increase of $1,286,835 for public health and hospitals. That will permit a number of improvements such as the hiring of an assistant superintendent and other additional personnel at Gallinger Hospital. It will permit the expansion of some health services. But the Commissioners struck out entirely the estimates of the Health Department for a mental hygiene program and cancer control before they sent the budget on to the Budget Bureau. Unless Congress corrects this mistake of judgment, the city will again be left with an inadequate health program at a time when public health is of the utmost importance. Since ample funds are available, we think that some of the surplus might be even better invested in public health than in the postwar reserve fund.

Featherbedding

Organized labor can be pardoned if it fears the United States Chamber of Commerce even when bearing gifts. There has been little in the policies of that august business body to inspire confidence among wage earners. But the president of the chamber, Eric Johnston, has now come forward with a proposal for a "bargain" that makes sense not only for his own team but from the point of view of labor as well. "I should like," he said the other day, "to see a well-rounded social security program developed and put into action as part of a bargain with labor that if the risks of job losses are adequately underwritten, labor will abandon its restrictive practices."

The restrictive practices to which Mr. Johnston refers are generally known as featherbedding. They are resorted to, for the most part, by old-line craft unions in a futile and rather pathetic effort to resist technological progress. At any time they are uneconomic and essentially antisocial, injuring more than they benefit the real interests of labor. In wartime they are wholly indefensible, for they waste manpower, the Nation's most valuable resource. Yet unions fight against abandonment of them as though they were among the basic rights of labor.

With a not dissimilar obtuseness, certain old-line employers have resisted union efforts to bring American workers within a comprehensive system of social security—to cushion the effects of business cycles or of changed production methods for those whose livelihood comes from hourly or weekly wages. Mr. Johnston made a very commonsense observation on this score: "Just as I believe in business insurance, so I believe that social insurance has a place in a dynamic, changeful system." He means, we take it, that instead of merely attempting to ignore or reject industrial developments which throw men out of work, management and labor join in mitigating them and in providing insurance against them.

There will be urgent need of this sort of joining together in the postwar reconversion period. Mr. Johnston appears to be holding out a hand which progressive labor leaders would do well to grasp. Between featherbedding on the one hand and reckless improvidence on the other there lies a sound and reasonably level roadway. It can be found only through joint action.

Congressional Duty

The soldier vote issue is now clear, simple and inescapable. As President Roosevelt put it in his message to Congress, "Our soldiers and sailors and marines know that the overwhelming majority of them will be deprived of the opportunity to vote if the voting machinery is left exclusively to the States under existing State laws—and that there is no likelihood of these laws being changed in time to enable them to vote at the next election. The Army and Navy have reported that it will be impossible effectively to administer 48 different soldier voting laws." The question, then, can no longer be discussed in terms of Federal action versus State action to enfranchise service personnel. It must be discussed on the basis of Federal action.

Senators Lucas and Green have revised their bill for Federal action in this sphere to meet all the reasonable objections of those who criticized it as unconstitutional. They have pared it down to its bare essentials. Their new bill, introduced on Tuesday, provides for a simple official Federal War Ballot and for a United States War Ballot Commission which will prepare ballots, distribute them through the auspices of the Secretaries of War and Navy and the Administrator of the War Shipping Administration, and transmit them to the several State secretaries of state.

The revised bill specifically provides that votes "shall be canvassed, counted and certified in each State by its proper canvassing boards in the same manner, as nearly as may be practicable, as the votes cast within its borders are canvassed, counted and certified." This means that the States retain their constitutional authority to determine the qualifications of voters. State officials, in other words, will decide whether the ballots returned to them were cast by bona fide residents of their States qualified to vote under their State laws.

Under the Lucas-Green bill, however, members of the land and naval forces away from home are released from the customary State procedures for absentee balloting and from the payment of a poll tax as a condition of voting. Is there a way of enabling them to vote without waiving these State regulations? Here is the snag. In some States, Kentucky for example, there is a specific prohibition against absentee voting. Perhaps under his wartime powers the President has authority to waive this difficulty. But the uncertainty leaves room for suit by a defeated candidate and the possibility of the invalidation of the entire election.

Congressional action should be supplemented by independent State action to set aside absentee voting requirements for service personnel. But the congressional action is essential. This country could have neither faith nor satisfaction in a national election from which millions of its citizens were barred solely because of their service to the country. We agree with the President that "It is the duty of the Congress to remove this unjustifiable discrimination against the men and women of our armed forces—and to do it as quickly as possible."

Foggia's Importance

Through the acquisition of Foggia, early in the Italian campaign, the Allies acquired air bases within effective bomber range of the capitals of Hitler's Balkan satellites. It is curious to see what we have done. Budapest and Bucharest have been spared, but Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, has not. On the contrary, Sofia has been repeatedly attacked, and for three main reasons. In the first place, it is only about 250 miles away, so that Allied bombers, in carrying out their missions against the Bulgar capital, can be accompanied by fighter planes. Secondly, Sofia is an important railroad center in the Balkans. An attack upon it creates serious transportation problems for Hitler's forces in southeastern Europe. And, thirdly, of all of Hitler's satellites, Bulgaria is perhaps the most wobbly in its allegiance to the Fuehrer, and most anxious to find a way to climb down from Hitler's bandwagon.

Hitherto the pressure from Allied quarters has been more than offset by the pressure from Germany. The bombing of Sofia is a reminder that the balance is now changing. The longer Bulgaria sits on the fence, and the more time she takes to make up her mind, the more she will be subject to aerial bombing. The prospect isn't pleasant for the Bulgars. They hoped that this time, in contrast with the two previous wars in which their country has been engaged during the past 30 years, they would end up on the winning side. This hope has now been shattered. The state of Sofia is a warning of what will happen to the country if awareness of the war's trend is not speedily followed by practical action.

Mutual Aid

Jet propulsion is simply an idea, but it may revolutionize aerial warfare. Jet-propelled planes are now in production in the United States where a good deal of research has been done to perfect their development. When these planes come off the assembly lines, a number of them will no doubt be shipped to Britain under lend-lease. It will be fairly easy to compute the cost of production and to write this cost down in dollar terms as a debit to the British in the lend-lease account books. But the jet propulsion idea was conceived in the mind of an Englishman, Group Capt. Frank Whittle. The first jet-propulsion engine was shipped from Britain to the United States, also under lend-lease, or under what the British more aptly term mutual aid. Who will undertake to compute the value, in dollars, of the idea? How is this to be written down in the lend-lease account books?

Should we simply credit the British with one jet-propelled engine shipped to this country and charge them with several thousand jet-propelled engines manufactured on the basis of their original? This is approximately what we have done respecting the patents for Rolls Royce Merlin engines freely made available to us by the British in 1940. Or should we, instead, recognize that the planes which we are producing are a joint product for use in a joint purpose and therefore not assessable in account books at all? It is time for us to answer these questions, for our answers will determine the entire nature of our postwar relations with the world. Lend-lease was a useful enough term in the days when we were engaged in measures short of war. But when we entered the war, we ceased to be lenders or leasers. We became equal partners in a great common undertaking.

Two Masters

The members of Congress who have been trying to serve two masters by donning the uniform of their country while holding on to their legislative jobs will now be compelled to withdraw from one or the other occupation. Such are the instructions issued by President Roosevelt on the advice of the Attorney General. There can be no question as to the validity of the presidential ruling. The Constitution imposes an absolute ban on dual service of this type by providing that "no person holding office under the United States shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office." Furthermore, the President is quite right in concluding that a man who has been elected to congressional office ought to serve exclusively in that capacity. Lawmaking is an exacting business, and never more so than in time of crisis. Unless uniforms are donned merely to give color to legislative halls and attract favorable notice from constituents, members of Congress entering the armed services are bound to neglect their legislative duties, possibly to forget them entirely.

The presidential ruling giving to members of Congress a clean-cut choice between resigning or abandoning plans to enlist will doubtless tip the scales in favor of the latter alternative. Already Representative Gore of Tennessee, who had applied for induction into the Army, has withdrawn his application. That is all to the good, for Congress needs the services of its able younger members much more than does the Army and Navy. It is sometimes easier to embrace the hardships of life in the armed services than to cling to sheltered civilian positions. But the test of right conduct for our legislators should not be what they prefer to do but how and where they can best serve their country, and that, obviously enough, cannot be in two places.

Bolivia's Status

Till the status of the new Bolivian regime is clarified, it would hardly be compatible with our interests or the interests of the United Nations to extend to Bolivia the privileges and favors vouchsafed our tried and true friends and allies in this hemisphere. Some time ago, for instance, an arrangement was made under which Latin-American governments were authorized to express their preference as to types and quantities of goods they would like to receive from the United States. The purpose behind this plan was obviously to cut down on red tape and delay since, having these indicated preferences before them, the licensing of exports by the Foreign Economic Administration could be expedited. But now the FEA has issued an order denying to Bolivia such a "preliminary voice" in determining what goods are to be shipped to that country from the United States.

This does not necessarily mean that the Government plans to suspend exports to Bolivia. Application for exports to that country can still be filed and, until further notice, will continue to be approved by the FEA—presumably in consultation with the State Department—as the circumstances warrant. But it is obvious that if the Government should decide that the Bolivian regime is anti-United Nations, the cutting off or curtailment of exports to Bolivia might be ordered. Other economic sanctions might be taken as well. In the meantime the Mexican Foreign Minister, Dr. Ezequiel Padilla, has made the very sensible proposal that the question of Bolivia's status be examined at a conference of all the American republics except Bolivia and Argentina. In this matter, as in all others affecting the hemisphere, united action is preferable to unilateral action.

REQUIEM FOR YOUTH

Like snow, like dew, like drifted rain,
The sorrows of the world are strewn;
Transfixed beneath that silver stain
Lie heaped the carnivals of June.
Grief is the glass and frosty sorrow
The lens through which blue vistas gleam
Distinct with promise of tomorrow,
Untouched by Time, undimmed by dream.
I see the contours of their beauty:
The bays more green; the laurel shape
More fair; a nimbus on the yew-tree;
The cup wink red with livelier grape.
And both are beautiful; the chain
That binds them winterwards deep under,
And the glory of the world new-slain;
The shroud of pearl and the hid wonder
Anointed under stars. Look deep,
Deep down, cry "Hail" unto the lost,
Those warriors, who transfigured sleep

Bolivian Drama

WHILE THE 18 anti-Fascist New World governments consider the recent Mexican proposal to have a meeting on the Bolivian question, within Bolivia there is playing a drama that can end one of two ways.

It may present the hemisphere with what all men of good will want—a solution that will safeguard the security of the New World from Fascist penetration and at the same time set the Bolivian people on the road toward gaining their deepest aspirations for an improved lot. Or, with an unhappy turn, it may plunge the country into a tragic situation, the outcome of which is now entirely unpredictable.

The way the story goes depends on the extent to which Bolivian labor is taken in by the Fascist gangsters who have worked themselves into the position of "saving" them from the big tin interests. In the final analysis, it will depend on how soon and how completely the best and most clear-sighted liberal leadership in Bolivia can rally the rank ond file of the miners' and rail workers' unions away from pseudo-liberal but really pro-Fascist elements within the labor movement itself.

Jose Antonio Arza

The news that Jose Antonio Arza, founder and leader of the leftist PIR, who was asked to return to Bolivia to support the new junta, is setting conditions excluding Nazi elements indicates that this test is under way.

From the very first, Bolivia's home-grown totalitarian National Socialists have tried to form their popular support as champions of the worker against big capital. The MNR, the party representing this purely German type of fascism, unfortunately has, in the first year, made a somewhat better show of it than the leftist PIR. Meanwhile, there can be no doubt that they have been actively pushing their penetration within the secondary leadership of Bolivian labor.

This is a technique that students of Fascist penetration in the New World and elsewhere will find very familiar. It is the exact pattern the Nazis used in trying to take over the Mexican oil unions at the time of the controversy over expropriations. This technique reaches into our own country, to make liberal forces here wherever possible a tool of disunity that serves only Fascist ends.

If the rank and file of Bolivian labor falls for this moth-eaten trick, it will be a tragedy of the most ironic kind. Nobody is going to pretend that divided, almost chaotic, Bolivia, split by sectionalism and the victim of an incredibly stupid type of fuedalism and medieval capitalism, can be turned into a modern democracy overnight. But if the labor movement does not play Red Riding Hood to fascism's wolf, chances were never brighter that a start can be made.

Their failure to see this would be tragic first of all because swapping medieval private capitalism for medieval state capitalism simply exchanges the devil for the witch. In the second, it would be tragic because 18 nations of the New World simply cannot swallow Bolivia's Fascists. No matter what arguments may come from Argentina that Argentina and Bolivia together can stand against the prodemocratic world, time will prove that they cannot.

New World and Fascism

The United States and 17 Latin-American countries are in the position of having raised this question of protecting the New World against Fascist political onslaught. There is not a shadow of a doubt in any informed person's mind that MNR leaders, including Paz Entessoro, party chief, have been and are closely associated with both Argentine and German Nazis and received their aid in their coup.

This issue has to be faced squarely and since it is being faced in unprecedented common action, no shade of compromise with any set of Bolivians who bear the Fascist taint is possible. If Bolivian labor through confusion or through the betrayal of bought leaders is led to do battle for a Fascist-tainted group, they will be brought squarely into conflict with the absolute necessity of the 18 republics to protect the New World against further Fascist inroads.

There had to be a turning point somewhere, and Bolivia is it. It is characteristic of Secretary of State Cordell Hull's entire record that he never starts anything he is not fully prepared to carry through. He never reveals his hand in advance nor moves precipitously, but a long record of victories in the domestic and the foreign field show that he moves effectively. It is significant that his was the first voice to question the Bolivian junta.

In the last analysis, no matter how much pro-democratic forces of the hemisphere might want to see a decent government in Bolivia, there is part of the job that only Bolivian patriots can do. They will have to see through the Nazi smoke screen to realities and carry through on their own to assemble a clean-handed leadership as patriots have had to do everywhere that true liberty has been born.

Air Prelude In Western Europe

IN HIS MASTERLY report of a fortnight ago on the operations of the Army Air Forces, Gen. H. H. Arnold, the commanding general, declared that the primary aim of these operations "is to make the coming invasion of Germany as economical as possible by drastically reducing the war potential of the Third Reich and its satellites."

Using this as a touchstone, last Tuesday's daylight raids by the Eighth Air Force on Oschersleben, Halberstadt, Brunswick, Bielefeld and Meppen can be put down as a success, though by no means an unqualified success.

Considerable damage was done to the enemy on that occasion. But the cost to us was not negligible. The Luftwaffe still packs a lethal punch.

GERMANY has been on the defensive for something like 14 months. During that period the German armies in Russia, in North Africa, in Sicily and Italy have been engaged in a continuous holding operation. The purpose has been to keep the Allied forces as far away from the Reich as possible as long as possible so as to give Hitler time to organize Europe's and particularly Germany's defenses.

This strategy has been only partially successful. It is true Germany has gained time. But she has been greatly hampered in the employment of that time by the circumstances that, while the land forces of the Allies were being held at great distances from the Reich, Allied air power has had little difficulty in penetrating Germany's defenses.

THERE CAN BE no question whatever that Allied bombing of German targets, particularly during the past year, has seriously hampered German production, placed enormous additional burdens on German transport and tended to undermine German morale.

In the vital field of fighter-plane production we have it on the authority of Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commanding general of the American Strategic Bombing Force on the Western Front, that the attacks by our air forces have knocked out an estimated 40 per cent of Germany's planned fighter production in the latter part of 1943.

It must be noted that General Spaatz was careful not to say that 40 per cent of Germany's fighter strength has been knocked out in that time. That simply isn't true. Through a drastic allocation of priorities, through a limitation of bomber production to the minimum and expansion of fighter production to the maximum, Germany has not only managed to keep up her fighter strength but even, it has been estimated, actually to increase it by 1000 front-line units during 1943.

BUT IF THE FIGHTER arm of the Luftwaffe has not declined absolutely during the past year it has certainly declined relative to the growth of Allied air power.

As a result, the Luftwaffe has been forced to be very sparing in the use of its fighter planes. In the extreme west of Europe, that is along the so-called invasion coast, we have had the spectacle of 3000 Allied planes engaged in "sweeps" in one day with none of them challenged except by antiaircraft barrages. However, where the Allies have aimed at vital German targets, particularly those having to do with absolutely essential war production, the German high command has found it necessary to risk Germany's fighter strength even at the risk of having it whittled down. That is what happened at Schweinfurth last fall and again in last Tuesday's raids.

Altogether, according to Eighth Air Force calculations, as many as 1000 German fighters took part in Tuesday's tremendous air battle and of these 152 were shot down. But we lost 60 four-engined bombers and five fighters. However in addition to shooting down those 152 German fighters considerable damage was done to German fighter plane factories and assembly plants. It is such basic attrition of German productive capacity that will tell in the long run.

PERHAPS the most significant aspect of Tuesday's raids, however, is the depth to which our bombers and fighters penetrated. For it means that henceforth targets in central Germany as well as in west Germany and on Europe's west coast can be bombed by day as well as by night. And during the coming invasion season, be it remembered, the nights will progressively grow shorter, the days longer.

We clearly have the edge in the air battle now shaping up in western Europe. But we need more than an edge to make our invasion of Germany economical.

That is why we must expect the air war on the Reich to grow steadily in intensity and fury during the coming weeks. By the same token we must be prepared for heavy losses. For the Germans realize as well as we do that if they suffer a decisive defeat in the air battle that is the prelude to invasion the jig will be up for them.

Stoppages of Production

Stoppages of production in wartime are a grave offense against society — as grave, perhaps, as breeding disunity among our population. We cannot, however, subscribe to the doctrine that it is a service to society to pin the blame for work stoppages on the coattails of labor. Even less can we indorse the practice of anonymously smearing labor by making unsupported charges such as the one recently attributed to General Marshall that the steel workers and railroad workers have prolonged the war for at least six months.

Taking this charge first, it is manifestly absurd to maintain that while a statement which is given the greatest weight by the press is harmless so long as its author remains unknown, it would be obvious that the harm of publicity could be only to the high authority, if he could not support the charge.

So long as the "high authority" chooses not to defend his statement, then, we must examine it on its merits.

The enemy-listening services of the OWI, we understand, found only a few passing references to United States labor troubles in enemy propaganda recently. This would seem to belie the statement that the enemy can so capitalize on steel and railway workers as to prolong the war for six months! Indeed, it would seem to us that what could very well be capitalized by the enemy is the indisputable fact that a "high Washington authority" asserts that the United Nations' cause has suffered a serious reverse!

Aside from this ironic piece of psychological buffoonery by one who simultaneously claims to be concerned with psychological warfare, there is in the charge—or at least in the manner in which it has been handled by the press—a gross misrepresentation of the entire issue of wage disputes.

If we are to solve the problems presented to us and prevent the rise of identical problems, the approach is not through hysterical recriminations but rather through a grave reappraisal of Government policies which are inept enough to produce such crises!

Europe's Children

After reading J. J. Bridge's comment on your excellent editorial about help to Europe's children, I can only inquire:

Has J. J. Bridge ever been hungry? Has he ever lived in a cold house that he had no means of heating? Does he have any children, and if he has, would he be equally light-hearted and cold-blooded about letting them go hungry? Can he possibly believe that if all Europe starves except Germany it will forward our cause?

I have lived through German occupation in 1914-18, and I can assure you that the way the Germans humiliate the people they try to dominate will make any red-blooded man fight under any circumstances. The knowledge that his children will die of hunger, that in fact starvation has already made them tubercular beyond hope of recovery, will increase their despair but not their will to fight. They put up their magnificent fight for other motives than those J. J. Bridge attributes to them.

Farm Labor

Between State bureaucrats and the big one-crop farmers and Senators from the Southern and Southwestern States, our food growing farmers in Maryland are being taken for a ride. Last year when we tried to get labor for harvesting truck crops by hiring that labor as we have done for 30 years in its home States, we found that Congress, without a protest from our Maryland Senators and Congressmen, had frozen that labor. No labor could be moved without the permission of the Farm Bureau agents down there even when the labor was idle two-thirds of the time.

In order to make certain we didn't get any of that labor the Farm Security Administration camps were prohibited by Congress from housing any American Negroes who paid their own way into Maryland. We did get some foreign labor from the Bahamian Islands and it was good.

Now we learn this week that Florida which would not allow labor to be moved out when we needed it in 1943 only has to make a noise at Washington and our State bureaucrats round up all the domestic Negro labor in our Maryland farming districts and rush it down to cut sugar cane. Do our alleged Maryland Representatives in Congress approve this action? Where will that labor be when we want it for our early field work and truck crops? Why not move the foreign labor which is still here down to Florida and leave ours here?

If it was prohibited by Congress to move labor out of Florida to Maryland in 1943 why is it now permitted to move domestic labor out of Maryland to Florida? What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. There is no shortage of sugar with millions of tons in Cuba and Puerto Rico, but there will be shortages in real food this year if Maryland's harvesting and canning labor is missing.

France And Her Allies

By Paul Winkler

French Resentment

IT WOULD be useless to deny that there exists today in circles close to the Consultative Assembly of Algiers a considerable bewilderment concerning the Allied attitude towards the French Committee of National Liberation. Informed observers see the situation thus:

French resentment concerning the misunderstandings of the past between the Allies and the French groups which evolved into the present committee are not deep-rooted, and would be swept away quickly if a comprehending relationship were established in the present. Yet the French delegates in Algiers, particularly those of the resistance groups, who mirror feeling in France itself, believe, rightly or wrongly, that the Allies are missing the oportunity to establish any basis of permanent cooperation with France beyond the military plane. In particular, they wonder why, with the invasion of France so imminent, the Allies have failed to give the French Committee any inkling of their plans for cooperation with it in metropolitan France after the Army goes in.

New Crop of Charges

The chief slurs which are being discharged against de Gaulle and the French Committee today are these:

1. The anti-democratic nature of the committee is evident from its attack against freedom of the press by the "sequestration" of the Algerian newspapers.

2. The arrests of Peyrouton and Flandin show an unfriendly tendency towards the Allies, who had backed these men.

3. The committee plans an authoritarian regime for postwar France.

4. The contradictory opinions being expressed in the Consultative Assembly are reminiscent of the prewar political squabbles in France to which some persons attribute partial responsibility for her defeat.

The answers to these charges are simple:

1. Freedom of the press has not been affected by the "sequestration" applied to Algerian newspapers, whose practical effect has been misunderstood. The purpose of sequestration is to prevent the destruction of evidence which may be necessary in later trials to establish the responsibility of publishers who allowed their newspapers to be used as instruments of Axis propaganda. It consists in placing documents, correspondence, accounts, records and so forth in the custody of court administrators, who have been designated by the tribunals under prewar French law. The administrators have no authority over the current management of the newspapers, no influence on their policy, and no right to censor their contents. Similar measures are intended to be taken in France when that country is invaded, to make it possible to determine what persons, if any, were guilty of the war crime of aiding the enemy.

2. Extremely grave charges are pending against Peyrouton and Flandin, who were arrested for specific acts damaging to the common cause of the Allies, and not because America and Britain were induced (mistakenly, the French are certain) to put some trust in these men. The underground believes that when the public trial is held, it will be clearly demonstrated that both men were involved in a pro-German conspiracy directed against Allied success in the war.

3. The argument that the committee plans an authoritarian government for postwar France collapses on examination of the plans which are being discussed for the future. They all follow completely democratic lines, the chief problem being the method by which France is to return to the system of government by representatives elected by universal popular suffrage. It may be pointed out that the French Committee is the only exile government (recognized or not, it is obviously a de facto government) which has thought it necessary to check its own decisions by establishing an assembly, thus providing itself with a cross-section of French opinion, which seems to be as representative as is possible under present conditions. Although there is no legal obligation upon it to do so, the committee has regularly recognized the assembly's moral authority by modifying its own decisions on points where the majority of the assembly disagreed.

4. One of the best refutations of the charge of authoritarianism is precisely the fourth accusation — that contradictory opinions are being expressed in the assembly. The de Gaulle Committee has no fear of the expression of varying opinions; it believes, on the contrary, in their expression, and in full discussion of them as the means of arriving at the best course. And this is a doctrine which is the essence of democratic theory. Dr. Goebbels liked to sneer at the arguments of democratic assemblies, but it is hardly a reproach which one democracy should throw up to another.

There is, indeed, more agreement than disagreement in the French Consultative Assembly. The common resistance against the Germans has united the representatives of French resistance, who compose the assembly, in their over-all view of the situation, and there is little disagreement on major matters.

If these nonpartisan differences on detail look from Washington like disunity, one wonders how, from Algiers, some of the debates in Congress must sound.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Polish-Russian Borderland

THE PAINFUL subject of the Polish-Russian boundary dispute has brought forth a certain amount of American comment on how to organize the peace. This comment is based on a theory of internationalism and collective security which is, I believe, doctrinaire and so contrary to the lessons of experience that, if it prevailed, we should be unable to settle the war or make a durable peace.

LIPPMANN

This is the theory that the frontiers should not be settled now by diplomacy but should be reserved for the decision of the world organization which the four great powers at Moscow promised that they would set up "at the earliest practicable date". It is wrong, says one writer of this school, to lay "the broad lines of the European settlement . . . before this (world) system comes into full force". Thus, the diplomatic action, which has long been carried on by the British, Russian, American, Polish, and Czechoslovak governments, to find a settlement of this vexed question, is in the opinion of this school an indication that the powers are giving only "lip service to the principle of collective action".

THERE IS a quite opposite view, which is that the world system will never come into full force if the broad lines of the European and the Asiatic settlement have not first been successfully laid down. In fact, only when diplomacy among those intimately concerned and directly responsible has settled regional differences will that "earliest practicable date" be at hand for bringing a world organization into full force.

The broad lines of a settlement mean the fixing of the principal boundaries and the recognition of the governments which have legitimate sovereign authority within them. Until this has been done, how in the name of common sense are we to know who are the members of the new world system? Can we imagine such a system in which France and Poland do not play a leading part? But how can France play a part if there is no recognized French government? How can Poland play a part if the territory of the Polish State is undefined? The world system cannot create a French government or a Polish State; France and Poland are needed in order to create a world system.

IT IS RECKLESS to suggest that such fundamental questions be left in suspense until a world organization, which is as yet not even formulated on paper, is instituted, ratified, and set up. These questions are before us now as essential elements in our military planning; we must pass through France and Poland to invade and occupy Germany, and we must have the full assistance of France and Poland, and agreement on all fundamental issues.

We must have this now, and we cannot wait until the promised and nonexisting world organization comes into "full force". If these questions are not answered now, what we shall have is not a Polish State participating as an ally in our councils but a Polish problem which we have to treat. When we remember that the European war is only the first phase of the world war, and that we are counting on the combined action of the United Nations to finish with Japan, the urgency of settling issues which could divide us is apparent.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S experience at Paris should be a warning to us not to neglect diplomacy in the name of "collective action," and not to postpone a broad but concrete settlement of the main issues of sovereignty and of territory. When the Germans asked for an armistice on October 7, 1918, President Wilson had committed himself to 14 points for a settlement and in addition to some 13 general, very general, principles. But he had never used diplomacy to commit his allies to any of his commitments. In negotiating with the Germans, he had neglected to negotiate first with the British, the French, the Italians. It was not until October 29, 1918, eight days before the armistice, that President Wilson discussed the European settlement with the European governments; at that late date, and after he had already bound himself morally to the enemy on the terms of settlement, he approved a memorandum, hastily improvised in Paris by members of Colonel House's staff, which explained in somewhat more definite terms what his principles meant. With two formal reservations, but with no end of misgivings, the Allies accepted the explanation. But little had really been settled because little had been explored and negotiated and agreed upon by diplomacy. There was no dependable agreement on the French, the Italian, the Polish boundaries, nor on the Balkans and the Middle East.

It was amidst this anarchy of unsettled issues that the covenant of the League of Nations was drafted. As a result, in the disputed regions of Central and Eastern Europe the feeble authority of the disunited Allies was flouted again and again by military seizures, acts of violence, and local wars. No one who knows this history can, it seems to me, miss the stern lesson which it teaches. It is that the explosive issues of boundaries and of sovereignty should be settled as promptly and conclusively as possible. Not to settle them is to risk dividing the great powers, who must guard the general peace against a revival of the power of our present enemies, and to invite anarchy in which there will be little order or prospect of reconstruction.

THE DIPLOMATIC settlement of a question like the Polish-Russian borderland dispute must, of course, conform to recognized principles of decent relations, or it will not last. Our duty is to promote such a settlement, and to shun doctrinaire argument. There is no absolute and single moral principle at stake. But we need not hesitate to say that the only frontier line in that borderland which represents an international judgment on the merits, and is not the product of force and violence, is the Curzon line, which the Russians have at last offered as a basis for negotiation. The Ribbentrop-Molotov line of 1939 was the product of a deal with Hitler, and if Russia had not receded from it, her position would have been morally untenable. The 1939 frontier of Poland was established by war against Russia, a military raid upon Lithuania, and a deal with Hitler when he seized Czechoslovakia.

The Curzon line alone has any moral standing as a basis for discussion. It was drawn by the Allies who recreated Poland, who when they made it were not only not the friends of Russia but actually in armed conflict with Russia. It can scarcely be described then as a frontier defined by governments which did not have at heart the rights and interests of Poland. So we need make no apologies, or have any qualms of conscience, if we say that a negotiated settlement on the basis of the Curzon line is the best possible solution. And since there is an appeal to American public opinion, we must have the moral courage to say so.

HAVING SAID this, we can facilitate the negotiations, remembering the strong claims which Poland can make in regard to Lvov, remembering also the extraordinary difficulty of any government-in-exile which is asked to cede territory, and reminding the Russians as well as ourselves of the great saying of Thucydides that "of all manifestations of power, restraint impresses men most."

Government Campaign in 1943 to Encourage Home Canning Found Notable Success

By GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 14.—The campaign of the Agricultural Department to promote home canning of vegetables, fruit and other foodstuffs has met with conspicuous success.

A survey by the Institute among housewives in every State of the Union shows that three-fourths of the Nation's families put up cans or jars of food during 1943. The average number per family was 165 cans or jars, making a grand total of 4,100,000,000 for the country.

Vegetables were the chief item canned, with fruits, jams, jellies, marmalades or fruit butter next. Approximately one family in ten put up cans or jars of meat, fish or poultry.

Near Expectations

One notable fact about the home canning record is that the performance of the Nation's housewives came very close to what they said they would do last June. An Institute survey in that month, which asked housewives how many cans or jars of food they planned to put up, showed that an estimated 25 million hoped to put up an average of 175 cans or jars. The actual total, as today's survey indicates, turned out to be 24,800,000 putting up an average of 165 units.

Nearly half of all those who put up vegetables said that all the vegetables had been grown by members of the family in victory gardens or on farms. Many others said that a large proportion of home canned vegetables were home grown.

Figures Are Cited

The contribution of home canning to wartime food needs can be seen from the following record of performance in the Nation's kitchen:

Vegetables—21,100,000 families put up an average of 90 cans or jars, making a total of 1,900,000,000 units.

Fruits—19,500,000 families put up an average of 80 cans or jars, making the total 1,600,000,000 cans or jars.

Jellies—17,800,000 preserved an average of 30 jars or cans of jams, jellies, marmalades or fruit butter, for a total of 500 million.

Meat, fish, poultry—3 million families put up 38 cans on the average, making a total of 100 million.

In addition to canning, a sizable number of families have stored or dried various fresh foodstuffs, or put them into freezing units.

Approximately one family in four has stored fruits or vegetables, the average being 15 bushels. One in 14 had prepared dried food, while 1 in 20 put food into freezing units for winter storage.

Fire Insurance Rates Held Excessive; Bill Seeks Revision

District fire insurance rates are excessive, it was charged yesterday by Representative Engel (Republican) of Michigan, as Representative Anderson (Democrat) of New Mexico, moved almost simultaneously to bring about an adjustment.

Anderson introduced a bill which would empower the superintendent of insurance to control the rates and revise them downward if they are found to be too high. A similar measure is pending in the Senate, but is not as broad in several respects as the one sponsored by Anderson.

The Senate bill bearing the name of Chairman McCarran of the District Committee directs that an adjustment of rates should follow only if profits of an insurance company are found to be excessive for five years preceding an examination.

Anderson's measure provides for revision if rates are deemed out of line after an inspection of premium receipts and loss payments.

Anderson explained his plan would "eliminate the right of a company to quibble about what a proper profit should be on its invested capital."

The bill also adds explosion to the hazards of fire, lightning, tornado or windstorm covered by fire or casualty insurance, and, according to Anderson, insures "fair treatment" of all classes of property "so dwelling houses are not compelled to carry an extra load of cost so mercantile establishments may be given preferential treatment."

Engel said a study he made of fire insurance rates here several years ago as a member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee which handles the District supply bill convinced him insurance companies were either making excessive profits or their operating overhead was too high. He declared he found the amount paid in losses was about 25 per cent of premium receipts.

"Despite this situation," he said, "the people in Washington have never raised much of a howl about the fire insurance rates, because a policy on which they may pay from $15 to $20 for three years' protection seems small."

Greek Guerilla Resistance Sinks To 18-Month Low

Cairo, Jan. 14 (AP).—Virtual collapse of guerilla activities in Greece was admitted here today by newly arrived refugees who said organized resistance against the German and Bulgarian occupation forces was at its lowest ebb in 18 months.

These refugees said Athens and the port district of Piraeus had been heavily mined by the Germans in addition to the great Marathon Dam which controls the city's water supply.

Even the slightest show of resistance, the refugees said, caused the invaders to burn villages wholesale and to perpetrate mass executions.

The fear of reprisals is so great many people are asking the guerillas to go away and in some instances even welcome the "protective battalions" to keep the patriots at a distance.

Lehman Names Feller UNRRA General Counsel

Abraham Feller, deputy director of the Office of War Information since early 1942, yesterday was appointed general counsel of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration by Director General Herbert H. Lehman.

Feller, who also served OWI as general counsel, was released by Elmer Davis at Lehman's request.

In accepting Feller's resignation, OWI Director Davis lauded his service as an all-round adviser on "some of our most ticklish problems."

Plan Commission To Revise Bill on Slum Clearance

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission has undertaken revision of the proposed bill by which it will request Congress to grant it an over-all postwar authority to undertake slum-clearance projects, it was announced yesterday.

Members of the commission and Government officials met yesterday to discuss the proposed bill submitted by Alfred Bettman of Cincinnati, civic consultant to the District.

Thomas S. Settle, secretary of the commission, said the bill in its final form will not seek the authorization of any specific project, but will ask Congress for the power to undertake slum clearance programs as the needs arise.

1st Lady Opens 'Mile o' Dimes'

Mrs. Roosevelt opened the annual Mile of Dimes campaign display at the Capitol Theater yesterday by contributing two dimes, one for the President and one for herself, to the drive for funds to fight infantile paralysis in connection with the President's birthday.

Commissioner Guy Mason, co-chairman of the District Committee for Celebration of the President's Birthday Ball, introduced Mrs. Roosevelt, while hundreds of potential contributors stood by. Patricia Morrison, screen star now making a personal appearance at the Capitol, also spoke.

Bottles on the table display, which will be open 24 hours a day through January 21, were well filled with dimes and dollars by nightfall. No progress reports will be made until the close of the campaign, however. Cashiers will be on duty daily to make change.

Airport Urged As U. S. Area

Representative Randolph (Democrat) of West Virginia, said yesterday he had received a suggestion that the controversy over the Washington National Airport location could be settled by having Congress declare the airport area a Federal reservation over which neither Virginia or the District would have jurisdiction.

The District-Virginia boundary bill pending in the House would place the airport area entirely within Virginia. An amendment has been proposed that would locate it on the District side of the new boundary line, but Randolph has been warned by Thomas S. Settle, secretary of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission that such a change would "kill" the measure.

The airline executives had been asked to have their report ready by January 3, but Randolph granted them an extension of time.

Stars of Mrs. Miniver' Excel Themselves in 'Madame Curie,' Palace

THE STORY OF A WORLD-FAMOUS FIGURE, both as woman and scientist, as set forth in Eve Curie's biography of her mother, comes to magnificent life in "Madame Curie," which yesterday opened its first Washington engagement on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater.

By its perfection of detail, exceptional casting and the skill with which it endows one of the great scientific achievements of our time with qualities of warm human emotion, humor, pathos and excitement, "Madame Curie" takes immediate place among that small group of superlative films that deserve to be known as the screen's master pictures. It is of a piece with "Mrs. Miniver" and "Random Harvest."

The story, adapted so fluently and feelingly to the cameras by Paul Osborn and Paul H. Rameau, leads from a naive and simple opening through glowing romance and years of arduous labor, sorrow and indomitable courage to a glorious consummation, without at any time submerging its gentleness, rich humanity and the common touch under the involved abracadabra of the laboratory. It is fascinating and engrossing.

The great appeal of the picture, no doubt, rests in the fact that its romance is not incidental to a dreary scientific quest, but its scientific triumph the outgrowth of a great and perfect love.

Romance in Disguise

The young Polish girl with a fine record in research and accomplishment comes to the Sorbonne in Paris to pursue her studies and is apprenticed, in a manner of speaking, to Pierre Curie, whose hope has always been that he may never have a woman laboratory assistant. The attachment that springs up is at first undefined in his mind. But when the girl decides to return to her native country he marries her to prevent it. The courtship and wedding trip are delightful in their tenderness and charm.

Then the dragging years of experiment to determine the source of the glow that emanated from a piece of pitchblende. For months on end the work is pursued in a dilapidated shed until at last the unknown element is isolated. Triumph is within their grasp, but only Madame Curie lives to be honored by it. The episode of Pierre's death is one of the most touching in the picture.

Supremely Well Played

Madame Curie, broken, weary and alone, but guided by an unconquerable spirit, completes the work and the story ends in a great hall in Paris where the aged, white-haired woman is signally honored by the world's greatest scientists and responds to their encomiums with a stirring appeal that science dedicate itself to humanity above all else.

As I have said, "Madame Curie" is not so much the story of the discovery of radium as it is the idyllic tale of two soaring spirits who found their inspiration and their strength in a great and enduring devotion. To this major aspect of the drama, Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon bring incomparable performances, surpassing in the full realization of their roles even the superfine work they did as wife and husband in the earlier "Mrs. Miniver."

Miss Garson's portrayal of Madame Curie from youth to old age is a superb accomplishment. It is a variegated and enormously appealing characterization in which these eyes and ears were unable to detect a false note. Walter Pidgeon's portrait of Pierre Curie is one of equal gentleness, strength and conviction.

The supporting roles are played with such distinguished excellence that they need not be identified beyond the statement that they are in the hands of Dame May Whitty, C. Aubrey Smith, Henry Travers, Albert Basserman and his wife, Elsa Basserman; Victor Francen and Reginald Owen.

Youth Scores

In the more youthful assignments, Robert Walker, who scored in "Bataan"; Van Johnson and prodigious little Margaret O'Brien quite hold their own, even in the face of such illustrious company.

To production and direction, Sidney Franklin and Mervyn Le Roy, respectively, have brought the same punctilious attention to the minutest detail that made their "Random Harvest" merely the precursor of this greater work.

An illuminating commentary is spoken by James Hilton, famous author, many of whose works also have found their way to the screen.

The length and completely satisfying quality of "Madame Curie" have reduced the supplementary features of the bill to cartoon and newsreel—and they never would have been missed.

'What a Women!' Lives Up To Her Billing at the Earle

In Columbia's smartly produced and cleverly acted new comedy, "What a Woman!" Rosalind Russell once again is congenially cast as a superbusiness gal with a fine flair for caustic wit and a slight aloofness in matters of love. It is for that that the current attraction on the Earle screen is notable.

As Carol Ainsley, the greatest "ten per center" in the business, Miss Russell bears the chief burden of Columbia's investment as well as the full responsibility for the conduct of the artists agent's office over which she presides—in this instance, with results that are highly entertaining and thoroughly amusing.

When "The Whirlwind" turns out to be the greatest best-seller of the past 10 years, Miss Ainsley promptly signs a contract with the author to act as his agent and sell the book to the movies—a feat which was no feat at all. That came later. The movie deal entailed also the acquisition of a personality suitable to the title role of the "big, he-man" hero of the novel.

Author! Author!

The ensuing quest almost outdid the famous one for a heroine for "Gone With the Wind." When the author of the book presents himself he fills the bill perfectly. Only he can't act! Oh, can't he? What this towering, young, retiring college professor does to the life of his agent is something to see for everyone interested in the intricacies of robust romance.

The complications set in when the star writer and coeditor of The Knickerbocker is assigned to do a profile of Miss Ainsley for his magazine. Hovering always on the sidelines, this cynical fellow constantly fans a flame which otherwise promises not quite to ignite. What comes of that comprises the crux of the picture.

This genial yarn, of course, is cut to a familiar pattern, but it is so buoyantly played by Miss Russell and Brian Aherne, as costars, and Willard Parker, a handsome 6-foot-4 newcomer, that the soft spots in the plot and its occasional tendency to let down from its usually high velocity are scarcely noticeable.

Down Their Alley

As we have said, Miss Russell by long practice is completely at home in this sort of thing. So is Brian Aherne, in the role of the profiler. Their performances are in nice contrast and no end engaging. Nevertheless, it is this young Mr. Parker who has the toughest assignment of the lot and he comes out of it with a bright future in the films assured. Mr. Parker seems to be of the stuff of which "idols" are made. The men will like him, too.

Although they do not greatly matter, Alan Dinehart, Edward Fielding, Ann-Savage, Norma Varden, Douglas Wood, Grady Sutton and a considerable list of others lend their presence to many scenes of biting humor, shallow perplexity and gay goings-on. Irving Cummings, once leading man of the Garrick Theater Stock Co., has directed the piece with a primary eye to its comic content and the preservation of an atmosphere of Park Avenue opulence, befitting the social status of an artists agent whose father has been in the United States Senate for 20 years or so.

Hackneyed or not, "What a Woman!" is an exceedingly amiable frolic.

A Cheerful Revue

So is the stage bill, headlined by Tim Herbert, scion of the Herman Timberg tribe and a versatile young comic whose antic humor never has failed to win the plaudits of a Washington audience. His is preceded by Olson and Shirley, clever acrobatic and contortionistic dancers, and followed by the Whitson Brothers, upsidedown gymnasts who manage a little comedy along with their athleticism.

The Roxyettes, of course, are on and off and in and about throughout the movement of one of Harry Anger's most colorfully staged revues, and a particularly pleasant note is added by Charles Mayer, "The Singing Maestro," whose voice is heard both offstage and on to the extreme benefit of the scenes in which he engages.

And besides all that, to round out a dandy bill, are an especially interesting issue of "Popular Science," in Technicolor; "Little Red Riding Rabbit," a ridiculous Merrie Melodie cartoon, and a tiptop newsreel.

In Film of Persecuted Women

ROLAND VARNO AND GAIL PATRICK, two of the principal players in Monogram's production of "Women in Bondage," depicting another phase of Nazi brutality, now on the screen at the Metropolitan Theater. Nancy Kelly is costarred with Miss Patrick, with Ann Nagel, Tala Birell and H. B. Warner also in the cast.

The Fate of Nazi Womanhood Explored on Screen at Met.

By Marjorie Kelly.

"Women in Bondage," which opened yesterday at the Metropolitan, is a melodramatic treatment of the plight of women inside Germany. Cut after the pattern of "Hitler's Children," it is a dramatic reminder of the reasons American women have to fight fascism and a forecast of the long way Germany has to go after defeat of the Nazis before party doctrines will be eradicated from German thought.

The film tells the interwoven stories of four women who, for varying reasons, come to dislike the Nazis. There is the young wife who cannot have children because her husband was paralyzed as a result of wounds sustained on the Russian front. She is ordered to have children by her husband's brother. There is the young mother who wants her child baptized in the church, and is arrested for attempting it, since regulations require that the son of a party member be baptized by the Nazi ceremony.

The "Super Race"

There is the old grandmother of a Nazi equivalent of the American "cuddlebunny," who is horror stricken to learn that the authorities consider her granddaughter's activities unpatriotic.

Finally, there is the young girl whose marriage to an S. S. man is forbidden because she is slightly near-sighted, and S. S. men must marry women who are physically perfect, in order to bring the race of supermen into being.

These four stories are unfolded with all possible delicacy, yet, despite careful treatment, their nature makes the film undesirable for youngsters to see.

In the leading roles, Gail Patrick and Nancy Kelly contribute sympathetically and believable performances. Gisela Werbisek is excellent as the old grandmother. Tala Birell makes a frighteningly fanatical young Hitler woman.

An Interesting Field

It would be interesting to have more films of this sort, particularly if emphasis were put, not upon melodramatic plot, but upon characterization, upon the attempt to explain what makes a Hitler woman tick, how race persecution and moral laxity are rationalized, and how decent Germans feel about these abuses.

Of all the aspects of this world conflict, the least explored in the films has been the position of people inside Germany who do not like the Nazis.

That is what makes Monogram's venture in making "Women in Bondage" important.

Gossip From Gotham

New York, Jan. 14.—When Clark Kerr, Britain's Ambassador to Moscow, was in London, he went to Dunhill's and told the manager that he wanted to buy two brier pipes. "We have none," the manager assured him. "We can't get any, on account of the war. You know, there's a war on." . . . "Yes, I know," said the Ambasador. "That's just why I need two brier pipes. They're for Mr. Stalin." . . . "Mr. Josef Stalin?" asked the manager . . . "Of course, Mr. Josef Stalin." said Kerr. "The pipes he smokes are awful. I want to give him some good ones." . . . The manager produced two pipes.

MARC CONNELLY

Kerr's familiarity with the kind of pipes Stalin smokes resulted from his visit to the Kremlin, during the period when Anglo-Soviet relations were somewhat strained. In fact, Stalin's statements, at a dinner to Wendell Willkie, had so outraged the British Ambassador that he threatened to resign . . . Kerr and Stalin, however, were thrown together, literally, by accident, during the Ambassador's visit to the Kremlin. It was to have been a short conference. But as soon as it began, an air-raid alert was sounded. Stalin invited Kerr to accompany him to the air-raid shelter. Stalin speaks no English, and Kerr no Russian. Stalin therefore asked his interpreter to join them. And in the confining shelter, during the two-hour alert, they settled their differences while the Soviet leader puffed away at his pipe. Kerr sniffed, criticized Stalin's pipe, and the gasping Ambassador promised to get him some new ones as soon as the long raid ended and he could return to London.

Capt. John W. Thomason 3d., son of the noted Marine writer-artist, returned recently from a long assignment in the combat area. He went to the Marine Corps' Public Relations office at 4:30, when the employes—who start working at 8 a. m.—were leaving. The phone rang, and Captain Thomason answered it . . . The caller, an OWI official, asked for someone. "He just left," said Thomason. "Sorry, but this office closes at 4:30." . . . "That's terrible, quitting so early," said the caller. "We close at 6 at our place." . . . "Listen, mister," replied the Captain. "This is your first war, over at OWI. To us Marines, war is old stuff."

The president of Venezuela soon will arrive in Washington . . . John McCaffrey of Doubleday, Doran, will be the new fiction editor at the American magazine . . . Marc Connelly, who opened at the City Center playing the Frank Craven role in "Our Town," first had to become a junior member of Equity. Connelly, who wrote "Green Pastures," showed his life-membership in the Negro Actors Equity, but the drama official ruled that this was not enough.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

THOSE ON THE INSIDE say that most of the trouble regarding rail wages and even the seizure of the railroads might have been avoided if the President had not been in the barber's chair when last summer, he discussed wages with George Harrison, head of the railroad clerks.

Genial "Pa" Watson, Guardian of all White House appointments, unfortunately let the railroad labor leader in to see the President at the end of a busy day when he was getting a shave.

Tired and relaxed, Roosevelt was stretched out in the barber's chair with lather all over his face. He talked to Harrison between strokes of the razor, which meant that he didn't talk very much. Harrison did most of the talking and said that the railroad nonoperating workers should have a wage increase of 8 cents an hour, plus 6 cents an hour for overtime.

He came away from the White House with the definite impression that the President agreed to this. As a result, all rail workers, both operating and nonoperating, expected a proportionate raise and were boiling mad when Economic Stabilizer Vinson found that it violated the Little Steel formula and anti-inflation policies.

Ever since then, Harrison and associates have stuck to the promise which Harrison believed the President gave while he was being shaved.

Hull for President

WHITE-THATCHED, conservative Senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa had a private chat with Secretary of State Cordell Hull last week that would have made headlines had the circumstances leaked out.

The Iowa Democrat put it up to Hull very bluntly that he should be the Democratic nominee for the presidency this year.

Gillette is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and went to the State Department ostensibly to discuss international questions. However, the meeting quickly got down to some straight talk about politics.

After commending the 72-year-old Cabinet officer for the "national acclaim" he had won by his recent mission to Moscow, Gillette added that Hull was one of the few men who commanded the "respect and affection" of all factions of the Democratic Party. Then he got down to brass tacks.

"Mr. Secretary," he said, "I don't suppose it is any secret that there are many members of Congress who would like to see you as the next Democratic nominee."

The Iowan added that he had been given to understand that President Roosevelt would not seek a fourth term, in which case Hull should feel free to accept the nomination.

Hull didn't say yes, and he didn't say no. He replied that he appreciated the compliment, but that he had no ambitions beyond that of finishing out his duties as Secretary of State and helping to win the peace. He also said he was getting pretty old and indicated that he would prefer to make no commitments, at least until the President had spoken out on a fourth term.

Gillette later told intimates that the Secretary had by no means closed the door against a nomination bid.

Note: Gillette's call on Hull coincided significantly with a behind-the-scenes movement by conservative Democratic Senators—led by Senators Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina, Bennett Clark of Missouri, Burt Wheeler of Montana and others to promote a Hull-Gillette ticket at the Democratic convention.

Russians and UNRRA

COURTEOUS SOVIET Ambassador Gromyko dropped in to see Relief Administrator Herbert Lehman, former Governor of New York, the other day and said to him:

"I want you to meet your new deputy general, Mikhail Alekseevich Menshikov."

Governor Lehman murmered that he was delighted, chatted pleasantly for several minutes. Then the two Russians left.

Afterward Governor Lehman, who is slightly hard of hearing, got to wondering about the "new deputy general." He wasn't quite sure that he had heard Ambassador Gromyko correctly. Particularly, he wasn't sure of what organization Menshikov was to be deputy general. Was it, by any chance, UNRRA (United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration) for which Lehman is supposed to appoint the deputies?

So Governor Lehman called in his assistant, Phil Hammer, and asked him to find out. Lehman had already appointed Roy Hendrickson of the Food Distribution Administration as one of his deputies, and Sir Arthur Salter, British economist and shipping expert, as another. He did not know that he was to have a Russian deputy also.

Hammer invited Menshikov to lunch. During the lunch, he didn't want to ask pointblank of what organization his guest was deputy general, but he did his best to work round to the point diplomatically. Finally, he found out. Menshikov had been appointed by the Russian government to serve under Lehman as deputy general of UNRRA.

The Russians either had been very naive in sending Menshikov over without any advance announcement, or else this was their way of gently notifying Governor Lehman that his organization was going to be one of the most important in the world and that they wanted Russia represented in a high-up post.

Whichever is correct, there is no question about the tremendous political power of the Relief Administration. By withholding food and clothing from Greeks who oppose the Greek king, for instance, Lehman could exert influence as to who would be the ruler of Greece. By sending food and clothing to Tito's followers in Yugoslavia, or by favoring Mikhailovitch's men, UNRRA could change the whole political picture in Yugoslavia.

Soldiers' Home

In discussing the problem of milk and butter scarcity yesterday, this column stated that Bang's disease and mastitus existed in the dairy herd of the Soldiers' Home. We are now delighted to learn from competent veterinarians that the Soldiers' Home herd is entirely free from both diseases—in fact, is so pure that this columnist hopes some day to acquire some of its offspring.

Director Solves Scene Problem With Fairy Tale

Hollywood—Motion picture directors have used flattery, sarcasm, criticism and everything else to get a good performance out of actors.

Now there is a director who recites nursery rhymes and spur-of-the-moment fairy tales to get results.

He is Delmer Daves, director of Warner Bros.' "Destination Tokyo." The "actor" was Daves' own 4-year-old son, Michael, making his screen debut as the child of Cary Grant and Faye Emerson, "papa" and "mama" in the picture.

Daves discovered the only way he could hold his son's attention, get the facial expressions wanted, and keep the youngster from looking directly into the camera, was to go into the story-telling routine.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

The Tabasco Kid, they called him, when he was a bundle of fury in the infield of the New York Highlanders. Norman Elberfeld died this week, at the age of 69. Usually he was the smallest guy on the field during the eight years he was in the big leagues, but base-runners going into second learned to give the Kid a wide berth.

POVICH

The Ty Cobb-Kid Elberfeld battle was probably baseball's most notable affray. It lasted for eight years. Elberfeld put a stop to Cobb's head-first slides into second base. "Ty found out my feet were harder than his head," the Kid once told us. "Then he started coming in spikes first. I had to protect myself."

According to Clark Griffith, the Kid's idea of protecting himself was swinging first. "He couldn't lick Cobb, he weighed only 150 pounds, but he never stopped trying," says Griffith. "When Cobb came into the bag and Elberfeld was covering, we'd just stand around with our arms folded for the next few minutes and watch the goings-on, until one or both of 'em were thrown out of the game."

Elberfeld played shortstop for Griffith at New York from 1904-08. "He wasn't any bigger than Willie Keeler, and he wasn't as good a ball player, but they didn't call him the Tabasco Kid because he was shy."

In later years, Elberfeld managed pennant winners in the Southern Associations and conducted baseball schools. He tried to develop ball players in his own image. "Develop their guts first," he used to say. He despised the player who didn't have courage. From Little Rock, Ark., one day in 1923, he telegraphed Griffith "I've got a pitcher for you with more courage than you ever saw."

Off that tip, Griffith went to Little Rock and bought big Fred Marberry for $8000. Elberfeld hadn't overrated Marberry. In the toughest spots, the big right-hander would merely throw his leg into the batter's face, rear back and singe the batsman's beard with a fast ball. He worked in 51 games the year the Nats won the pennant in 1924.

In his day, Elberfeld was the champion at getting hit by pitched balls. His contemporaries vow that he was not above sticking his skull into the path of a pitch, if necessary. He developed the art of getting hit into such a talent that umpires often refused to let him take his base, says Griffith.

Down in Little Rock, relates Arch McDonald, the old Arkansan, Elberfeld had a lad named Frankie Zoeller on his ball team. Zoeller was his son-in-law. The Kid, however, taught Zoeller the art of getting his base by taking a pitch on the elbow. He equipped the fellow with a special elbow pad to deaden the pain. For Elberfeld, it was a concession. In his own playing days, he used no pad.

Elberfeld set no records as a ball player, but he attained one distinction, according to Griffith. "He was the first man ever to put on the squeeze bunt. We worked it with the old Highlanders one day in 1904. Big Jack Chesbro was pitching. We weren't getting any runs. Finally Chesbro tripled with one out in the eleventh. I didn't see much chance to hit him home, so I tipped off Elberfeld to lay one down, and then I told Chesbro what was on. The bunt wasn't too good, but the other club was so flabbergasted at a bunt in a spot like that they made no attempt to field the ball and the game was over."

Before another season was very old, the squeeze bunt became an integral part of the game. It was the era before the lively ball. Connie Mack's Philadelphia teams were quick to adopt it. The White Sox who use it more frequently than any other team now, get their orders from Jimmy Dykes who learned the value of the play under Mack. Twenty years ago, Bucky Harris, Muddy Ruel and Roger Peckinpaugh worked the squeeze consistently for the Nats.

In 1931, Elberfeld was running a baseball school at Atlanta. He heard about a tall, country kid who was playing ball on the Riverdale, Ga., sandlots, and invited him to the school. A period of rain set in, and fielding practice was impossible, but the boys were taking batting practice nevertheless. Elberfeld was smitten by one lad's batting ability.

The boy was Cecil Travis, and Elberfeld was curious, now, about how the kid could field. He was so impatient to learn about that, that he called Travis into his home and spun him grounders on the living room rug. He liked what he saw, apparently, because he wired Joe Engel, the Chattanooga club owner, "I've got a great shortstop for you. You'll have to teach him some more about fielding but he can hit in the dark."

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

During the year 1943 the game of golf lost 21 prominent players, many of them war casualties.

Greatest was Pam Barton. The good-looking girl won the British ladies' championship in 1936 and 1939, and took our championship in 1936. She was on the Curtis Cup teams in 1934 and 1936.

CONSIDINE

When war broke out she searched around for the spot wherein she could best help her country. In due time she became a WAAF (Women's Auxiliary Air Force) and after a period of training was put to work in the control tower of an RAF drome.

But she wanted more action than a pair of earphones and a job of a switchboard could afford. So she became one of England's ferry pilots. And was killed in a crash.

Lieut. John P. Burke, who won the intercollegiate championship while a student at Georgetown in 1938, and the metropolitan amateur title and Rhode Island State crowns in 1940, was killed in action in North Africa.

Pete Page, Princeton captain in 1940-41, and former president of the Intercollegiate Golf Association of America, was killed in the South Pacific. He was a lieutenant, and Marine flyer.

John Shimkonis, Andover (Mass.) pro, has been missing in action for a long time as a member of a Navy gun crew on a merchantman; Joe Thompson of the famous Canadian golfing family was killed in the air over North Africa. He played in several of our national amateur championships and reached the quarterfinals in the 1938 test.

New England's amateur champion of 1940, Leo Martin of Watertown, Mass., who added the Massachusetts amateur championship to his list in 1941, was lost at sea while serving as a first class seaman in the Navy. Andy Drake, Ohio pro, was killed at Munda. Dale Bourn, runner-up in the British amateur in 1933, was killed in action while serving his country. So was Bill Harmon of Rome, Ga., who was slated for big things in golf.

Among the golf celebrities who died of natural causes during the year was Ted Ray. Ray did much to popularize golf in this country, and he did it—as his old partner, Harry Vardon, did—by losing an important match. Golfers will remember that he, Vardon and Francis Ouimet tied for the 1913 United States Open championship. In the ensuing play-off, Ouimet, little more than a kid in short pants, beat both the English masters and gave golf the same kind of stimulant that tennis received when Maurice McLaughlin came out of the West with a slam-bang game that made the country stop saying "forty love," in falsetto, at the very sight of a tennis player.

Ray was British Open champion in 1912, and came back here in 1920 to beat our best and win our title. He was a tremendous hitter and a man of blunt tongue and habits. Eddie Eynon, who was a fine golfer before (and after) he became an official of the Washington ball club, told us once that he sat behind Ray on a streetcar en route to a golf course outside of Boston and saw Ray doggedly squirting his tobacco juice into the pocket of his rough English tweed coat. Ray was all man, though his expectorating doesn't necessarily prove it, and during his years he lent dignity and virility to a game which theretofore had been cloistered in the swankest of country clubs.

We thought the new high in something or other had been reached in the war effort when the ad writers for the perfumes began telling the gals that they could bring Hitler to his knees and doom Japan (unbeaten in 2000 years of warring) by using some sensual scent that lowers the lids, makes nearby hounds bay and turns the flabbiest housewife into a cross between Ingrid Bergman in Gary Cooper's clutch and Julie Hayden before a transfusion.

But no. We have at hand a distinguished looking letter from the National Bureau of Press Relations. It is written on letter paper that a guy couldn't even afford if he were forging Harry Hopkins' signature in a letter to a Willkie worker. The subject? Why, it has to do with enriched doughnuts. Seems that they're going to put us over the top. That will be a great comfort to General Marshall and Admiral Halsey. They can now take well-earned vacations.

G. W. High's Five Defeats W.-L., 49-25

Alexandria, Va., Jan. 14.—George Washington High, dominating play from the start, rolled up a 49-25 score on Washington and Lee High here tonight before 500 fans. Joe Hensley, in keen firing form, accounted for more than half of G. W.'s total, making 13 field goals and 2 fouls for 28 points.

G. W. went about its work methodically, running up a 26-13 lead in the first half and then maintaining about a 2-1 advantage in the counting from that point to the final whistle.

Each team used few players, G. W. sending only seven men to the floor while the Little Generals employed only a single substitute. The victory gave the Alexandrians an even break so far this season.

The second clash of these rivals will be staged later in the year on the Washington and Lee court.

'Kid' Elberfeld, Long in Baseball, Dies of Pneumonia

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 14 (AP).—"The Tobasco Kid," fiery little Norman Elberfeld, whose baseball career spanned more than three decades in both the major and minor leagues, died of lobar pneumonia here last night.

Elberfeld's death at the age of 69 ended a colorful career that saw the wiry shortstop rise to manager of the old New York Highlanders, predecessors of the Yankees, and of several other major league teams. He played shortstop for Washington in the early 1900's.

He reached the peak of his career in the 20's in the role of pilot of Southern Association teams, one of which, Little Rock, won its first championship under his guidance in 1920.

Elberfeld contracted pneumonia less than a week ago.

Lichtman Bears to Play In Rochester Tonight

The Lichtman Bears, pro cage champions, will meet the Rochester Seagrams in Rochester Stadium tonight, and return here to clash with the Kingston Colonials at Turner's Arena at 4:30 p. m. Sunday.

The engagement with the Colonials will be the Bears' first against this Long Island club. They have met and defeated the Seagrams on four occasions, twice here and twice in Rochester.

Sherwood Junior High Beats Silver Spring

Sherwood Junior High basketball team defeated Silver Spring Juniors, 18-17, at Sherwood yesterday. Crosley of Sherwood was high scorer with ten points.

College Park Rotary Wins

The College Park Rotary five, coached by Bill Werber, former big league ball player, upset the Navy Department team, 21 to 18, last night at College Park. The Sailors had defeated the Marines Thursday night. Bob Sparks led the winning attack with six points.

Purdue Scores, 51-38

Maj. Billy Southworth, After 25 Fortress Raids, Will Jilt Baseball for Post-War Career as Flier

Son of Card Pilot, On Leave in U. S., Done as Player

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 14 (AP).—Maj. Billy Brooks Southworth, back home from bombing Nazi-occupied Europe, made known an important decision today.

The 26-year-old son of Manager Billy Southworth of the St. Louis Cardinals said that piloting a Flying Fortress had lured him from baseball and he definitely had decided upon aviation as a postwar occupation.

"Since my hands have gripped an airplane stick, they don't care so much about holding a baseball bat," he explained. "I once had ideas I might continue in baseball, either as a player or else with the idea of some day managing a club as dad does, but from now on I'm just a fan."

Despite his Distinguished Flying Cross and Air Medal with three oak leaf clusters, the debonair Air Corps officer still is known throughout the baseball world as "Billy's kid"—the youngster who made a good record during his four years as an outfielder in the minor leagues.

"And he hasn't changed a bit," Papa Southworth remarked as his son enjoyed his first leave in 15 months of aerial combat duty.

Major Southworth, describing his first raid in 1942, said, "I felt just like a rookie ball player going into the Yankee Stadium for the first time."

"We were outnumbered and outweighed," he said, "and it was just like standing up there at the plate and watching three fast ones whizz by."

Billy, who was the first pro ball player to enlist in World War II, said "the Nazis had us worried at first" with broadcasts that the best place to hit the American Fortresses was in the nose. Southworth asked his commanding officer to approve another nose gun. Now all Fortresses carry that powerful extra protection in the front.

Southworth completed his 25th bombing raid in July in the Flying Fortress "Bad Check" (so named because "we always hoped it would bounce back"). And, he said, he and his crew "have never been scratched."

In July, Southworth was named operations officer of a combat wing, of the Eighth Air Force in England.

Nelson Holds 'Frisco Open Lead With 68

San Francisco, Calif., Jan. 14 (AP). Racking up an eagle 3 and playing faultless golf except for one hole, Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio, shot a four-under-par 35-33—68 today to lead the field at the end of the first round of the 72-hole $10,000 San Francisco victory open tournament.

Nelson, former National Open and Professional Golfers' Association champion, was one of very few entries who took the long Harding Park public course to pieces during the opening round of the battle for bonds.

Others included Lloyd Mangrum, Monterey Park, Calif., who posted a 33-36—69, a score equaled by a local favorite, Art Bell, who tacked together nines of 36-33.

George Fazzio, Pine Valley, N. J., and Harold "Jug" McSpaden of Philadelphia, winner of the rich Los Angeles open last weekend, also came in with sub-par 70's. Fazzio, not quite as high up on the national links ladder as the rest of the touring stars, carded a pair of 35's. McSpaden coupled a 34 and a 36. Par in 36-36—72.

Top flighters who discovered trouble along the route included John Bulla, Chicago, with 37-38—75; Craig Wood of New York, national open champion, 37-39—76; Ed Dudley of Colorado Springs, 38-39—77, and Leonard DoDdson, Kansas City, Mo. Dodson, after firing a duffer's 40 on the first nine, withdrew.

Army Boxers, V. M. I. Tossers at Maryland

The University of Maryland, the only school in this area making an attempt to carry out its full sports program, presents the outstanding collegiate attraction of the winter sports season tonight when the Old Liners entertain VMI in basketball and the Army in boxing at College Park's Ritchie Coliseum.

The twin bill has been moved up half an hour in deference to Army's boxing team which must take an early train back to West Point. The basketball starts promptly at 7:30 and the boxing at 9 p. m.

The Old Line courtmen, without a victory in four starts, will meet the first all-civilian team on their schedule in the Keydets, who dropped their first two games of the season. Al Heagy will coach the Maryland courtmen for the first time, as Burton Shipley, Maryland's court coach for 21 years, is in University Hospital in Baltimore with two broken legs, suffered in an accident last Sunday.

Lost to Bainbridge

Maryland has lost to Bainbridge Navy, Quantico's Marines, Marshall College and Virginia while VMI has been beaten by Woodrow Wilson Hospital in Staunton, Va., and Virginia. The game may not be basketball at its best but it figures to be close.

Both Army and Maryland will open their boxing seasons in tonight's match. Little is known of the West Point Cadets but Maryland Coach Fausto Rubini has learned from the grapevine that they are experienced and will present an octet of mittmen equal, if not above, Army's usual caliber, and Army has always been close to the best in college boxing.

Bobenko Veteran

Only Alex Bobenko in the 155-pound class boxed with the Old Liners' varsity team last year, winning two, losing one match and earning a draw in the other. Most of Maryland's team will be freshmen, winners in the intramural tournament conducted by Rubini, the two-time national intercollegiate champion at the University of Wisconsin. With his team lacking experience, Rubini has concentrated on top physical condition, a prime factor in college ring circles.

Four District boys will box for the Old Liners, Will Coakley at 127 pounds, Horatio "Ray" Hanbury at 135, Vic Berman at 145 and Sid Sterman at 165. Ed Gauvin at 120 will open the program and the Terp line-up will be completed with Bobenko at 155, Mike Zetts at 175 and Don Marowitz, a 6-foot-2, 205-pound greenhorn in the heavyweight division.

Kane Added To Monday's Arena Fights

Eddie Kane, who was called out on Coast Guard maneuvers and unable to fight here a few weeks ago, yesterday was booked for a six-round special on Monday night's boxing show at Turner's Arena featuring Charley Bennett, Washington's welterweight, and Nick Latsios, former Golden Gloves champion, in a 10-rounder.

Matchmaker Gabe Menendez plans to close out for Kane's opponent today. Kane, who had a streak of 16 victories until he lost, in a violent upset to Charley Bennett, announced through his handler, Glen Drake, that he would like to meet the Latsios-Bennett winner for the District welterweight championship, Latsios preferably.

In the meantime the managers of the rival scrappers, Naiman Massew (Latsios) and Marcus Pitts (Bennett) announced that they would ask the District Boxing Commissioner to recognize the Monday winner as the District titleholder. They claim that Frankie Wills, who is generally recognized as the champion, no longer can make the weight.

Ruffin, Larkin Battle to Draw

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—Winding up his civilian swat career in a vicious, slashing brawl that saw both battlers slug away virtually from start to finish, Bobby Ruffin drew with Tippy Larkin, in a 10-round fight tonight before a near capacity crowd in Madison Square Garden. Larkin scaled 138¼; Ruffin, 136¾.

LaMotta Scores Again Over Zivic

Detroit, Jan. 14 (AP).—Jake LaMotta of New York punched out another victory tonight over Former Welterweight Champion Fritzie Zivic of Pittsburgh, taking a 3 to 1 edge in their series. LaMotta, bigger and younger, finished strong to gain the 10-round decision.

LaMotta weighed 159; Zivic, 151½.

Blair Takes Thriller, 31-30, From Bethesda

Montgomery Blair's five, loser to Bethesda-Chevy Chase for the past five season, turned back its most ardent rivals last night in a 31-30 thriller before a crowd of 8000 on the Blair court. Bethesda, without a victory this year, could not overhaul Blair, but barely missed tying the game in the final minute when Herbie Benson, who played brilliantly otherwise, missed a foul shot.

Blair drew out to a 13-7 lead in the opening period and staved off some determined play by Bethesda to hold a 19-15 advantage at halftime. In the third period, Blair had its hands full to hold a six-point lead and in the final session, with O'Brien and Chappell showing the way, Bethesda gradually chopped down the margin. With the crowd in an uproar, Benson's game-tying foul attempt popped off the rim.

Joe Schrider and Jimmy Estes led the Blair scoring and were prominent in floor play.

These ardent county rivals meet again later in the season on the Bethesda court.

No G. U., G. W. Football in '44 Unless Army Trainees Can Play

There is little possibility of George Washington University or Georgetown University resuming intercollegiate football next autumn, even though some schools that discontinued the sport last year are reentering competition for 1944 convinced that 18-year-olds can play college ball satisfactorily.

Officials of both schools said yesterday that football is out for the duration, unless the War Department allows Army trainees to compete. This they consider unlikely.

Father Kehoe, director of athletics at Georgetown, said the "Army unit is so big that it takes our facilities" with 1350 men enrolled.

W. H. Myers, athletic director at George Washington, said he would like to see the sport resumed, but the school is on record as discontinuing football for the duration. Fewer men are enrolled now than normally, including 166 in the Army and 60 in the Navy.

Bassin Tops Colt Scoring; Indians Bow

By Tom Moore McBride

The fractious Coolidge Colts kicked up their heels in the face of the Eastern High basketballers last night, to win by a 25-22 score, moving another notch toward the interhigh championship. Tech triumphed over Anacostia, 30-19, in the opener of the double-header at Tech gym.

It all started innocuously enough, with Coolidge marching to an 11-6 lead at the end of the first quarter, with plenty of action at both ends of the court, but with the Colts sinking more than the Ramblers.

It slowed down some in the second quarter, as personal fouls came into play and free shots were galore. The Colts' Addie Bassin was the champ of the free shot men for the game, managing to get himself fouled to the extent of six good free baskets. Eastern had plenty, but when the boys toed the line they lost their aplomb and rimmed the bucket.

Lafferty to Fore

Lafferty, who scored seven points during the game, came to the fore for Coolidge during the third quarter, despite the fact that Eastern kept the game pretty much at its end of the court without scoring.

Bob Lamon, who scored 18 points against Wilson in Eastern's last outing but was pretty ineffective last night, got hot in the final period to score one of his two field goals and set up two others by Ed Charnock and Alex Vorobey. The Ramblers were still edging up when the final gun sounded, but the game didn't last long enough.

Indians Are Late Threat

Tech, in defeating Anacostia, 30-19, didn't look nearly as good doing it as Coolidge looked against the Indians last week. Anacostia, in fact, seriously threatened in the last quarter when Bill Kline of Anacostia sank a long one, after successful foul shots by Jim Flaherty, to bring the score to 24-19. The climb had been from a 15-10 score at the half and 21-16 at the end of the third period. But Tech's high scoring John Moffatt was not to be denied. He sank two more buckets and Jim Kranking accounted for another one, while the Flatsmen missed several beautiful chances for field and foul shots.

DePaul Is Unable To Play Bear Five In Birthay Game

Chicago, Jan. 14 (AP). — Ray Meyer, DePaul University athletic director and coach of the school's undefeated basketball team, announced tonight the Blue Demons would be unable to accept an invitation to play the Washington Bears, professional champions, as part of President Roosevelt's birthday celebration.

Meyer said he received the invitation yesterday from John Russell Young, Washington (D. C.) Commissioner, who proposed that the game be played (in Uline's Arena) at Washington on or about February 8, with proceeds donated to the infantile paralysis fund.

Schedule commitments prevented acceptance of the offer, Meyer said. DePaul, which has 13 straight victories, meets Notre Dame here February 5 and Illinois on February 12.

10,000 to Dance at USO Clubs

A number of special entertainment programs have been planned for the regular weekend events here today and tomorrow for men and women of the armed forces at service clubs throughout the Capital.

Servicemen of the United Nations attending the Saturday afternoon canteen of the National Press Club at the club's headquarters, 14th and F sts. nw., will hear Nan Blackstone, singer, and George and Terry Sterling, night club entertainers. The United States Coast Guard Band will give a concert.

Sightseeing Tours

Ten thousand men and women in uniform and warworkers will dance at USO Clubs tonight at which variety entertainment, refreshments, games and contests will also be included. Sightseeing tours, suppers and entertainment are listed on the clubs' calendars tomorrow.

Technical Sergt. Stephen Paledes, former pianist of the Astor Hotel Roof Orchestra in New York City, will play his own arrangements of popular music during intermission at the dance scheduled from 9 p. m. to midnight at the USO Club for men and women in uniform, 1911 H st. nw.

The Federal Diary

have been paid for 27 days as he was given leave on leave he had accumulated. The order stops this practice and now the employe would get 25 days.

(5) Temporary employes are now permitted to transfer leave accumulated when they transfer to permanent jobs. The old regulations denied temporaries this right. (6) The agencies' authority to confiscate leave is banned. This authority has been abused. For example, a War Department office has been denying accumulated leave to employes who fail to give 30 days' notice when they resign. Moreover, leave is looked upon as a right, as something earned, and even if an an employe is fired for misconduct it must be presumed that he earned his leave while he was performing good service. This provision removes one of the many axes over the heads of employes and it's a good move.

(7) Consultants who are paid on a "when actually employed" basis will no longer get leave. (8) The President gave the Civil Service Commission authority to change leave regulations for the duration. (9) Agencies were given authority to dock a day's pay from any employe who is absent on any holiday without permission, and (10) employes will still earn 26 days of annual leave and 15 days of sick leave each year but they'll be credited with two days of leave each month and every quarter they'll be credited with half a day. Now a new employe must work at least seven and a half days before he's credited with leave.

The new order will eliminate loads of red tape and paperwork as the new system will be much simpler to administer. Much credit is due Edgar Young and Jim Hard of the Budget Bureau, who did most of the spade work. The President has gone as far as he can to reduce paperwork on leave and now it's up to Congress to finish the job. Legislation on these points would be a big relief to Federal agencies: (1) Temporary employes, by law, are given two and a half days leave each month. Permanent employes are given two and a sixth. Giving temporaries 30 days a year makes no sense. All employes should be treated alike and temporaries should be given the same leave as permanents.

(2) Federal workers who leave the service should be paid accumulated annual leave in a lump sum. The whole account could be wiped off and closed out in a single transaction. Employes now draw checks every two weeks for four and five months after they resign and that makes for many transactions and a vast amount of unnecessary paperwork. (3) Employes who resign are paid for their accumulated leave but the paychecks of those who die in the service are stopped on the dot. This is obviously unfair and the beneficiaries of Federal workers should be paid in a lump sum for their accumulated annual leave.

EXCERPTS FROM LETTERS: "Harry Hopkins may be a symbol of New Dealism to some people but they are uninformed. Harry broke with the New Dealers three years ago and it was he who urged the President to drop the New Deal title . . ." "I can understand why Veterans' Administration has such a hard time hiring people. I work there myself. But I still have enough sense of humor left to laugh at the poor souls who run breathlessly into their offices every morning at 8:14. Can't be tardy or out you go . . ." Federal Diary of the Air, tomorrow over WRC at 4:35.

G. W. Rules May Bar Publication Of 'Cherry Tree'

The publication of the George Washington University year book, "The Cherry Tree" this year appeared doubtful yesterday as the result of the difficulty students have encountered in meeting requirements for publication as set by Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of the college.

One of the requirements was that it should be shown there would be no deficit in the publication funds this year, that it should appear on time, in May, and that at least 600 subscriptions must be sold in advance.

Also operating to prevent publication was the late date on which permission under the conditions named was granted. This permission was given on December 15 and students planning to work on the book were handicapped by the advent of the holidays and examinations. Students asserted that as a result of close planning they were certain there would have been no deficit this year, but they had found it difficult now to meet all the conditions and the deadlines set by printers.

Support Urged For Paper Drive

District Commissioners yesterday issued a proclamation calling on people of the District to cooperate with the Salvage Committee, Parent-Teacher Association and Boy Scouts to increase waste-paper salvage.

The Commissioners pointed out that the War Production Board has asked the newspapers of the country to undertake the United States Victory Waste Paper campaign "to generate a flow of waste paper from homes, business establishments and institutions to the paper manufacturers."

They said further that an acute shortage of waste paper now threatens production of new paper products for military and elementary civilian needs and that at least two million tons of waste paper are needed to keep mills at peak production.

Cab Drivers Penalized for Passing Fare

Licenses of seven cab drivers were ordered suspended yesterday by District Commissioners while charges against 38 others were dismissed.

All 45 had been charged with refusing to pick up Robert Hill at Massachusetts ave. and 2d st. ne., and 41 appeared before the hackers' board of revocation and review on December 28 to answer complaints.

Three were found guilty and their licenses ordered suspended for a period of five days, the shortest penalty the board can make. They were Harry McGowan, John F. Buetler and Samuel J. Godfrey.

Licenses of four who did not appeal were suspended indefinitely under a general ruling regarding failure to register change of address in the hack inspector's office. Licenses of such offenders cannot be renewed until they do appear before the board. The four were Batson Pope, Frank Cubero, Clifton Lord and William H. Hutchinson.

Cubero, it was learned yesterday, moved the day his notice to appear before the board was mailed, and the board will grant him a hearing Monday.

Potomac Park Buses to Make Extra Stops

Change in Capital Transit bus operations to allow extra stops on rush hour expresses to Potomac Park and to provide an alternate route for limited-stop buses on the East Washington Suburban Bus Line were ordered yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission.

The order makes the southbound rush-hour buses express between Varnum st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., except at transfer points and for discharging passengers, provided that no stops are made at Connecticut ave. and R and Connecticut ave. and 20th st. This will allow passengers to board buses at 21st and Pennsylvania ave. nw., a point at which numerous passengers are discharged.

The outbound alternate route for outbound limited buses during evening rush hours will leave the regular route at 14th st. and North Carolina ave. ne., proceed north on 14th st. to D st., west on D st., and then continue over the regular route.

Regular outbound buses will travel northeast on North Carolina ave. to C st., east on C to 17th st., north on 17th st. to D st., west on D st. to 13th st., north on 13th st. to I st., east on I st. to Florida ave., then east on Florida ave. to H st.

A. B. & W. Drivers Threaten Walkout Unless WLB Acts

Drivers of the A. B. & W. Transit Co. will hold a "recess meeting" within a few days unless the War Labor Board goes into action on their new company-approved contract, which has been shelved for the past seven months, union local officials said last night.

Calling of the recess session, which would continue the employes' last meeting Wednesday, as yet unadjourned, will depend on the War Labor Board's decision to take the contract under consideration, Clarence E. Mudd, secretary of the local, said. If called, the meeting would constitute a walkout, tying up service between Alexandria and Washington.

The men, who are represented by the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, AFL, would be granted top pay of 92 cents per hour for one-year employes, a rate which previously had been in effect for three-year employes, under the proposed contract.

The contract was approved by the company on June 18, and has not yet been considered by the WLB.

Uniform Cab Rate Sought Between District, Nearby

Negotiations to establish uniform taxicab rates between the District and nearby points in Virginia and Maryland have been under way for several weeks. Public Utilities Commissioner Gregory Hankin indicated yesterday that negotiation with State authorities was begun after the PUC had received complaints of gross overcharging.

Spitz Credited With Saving Lives Of Three in Fire

Snowball, a white spitz, was credited with saving three persons from death or serious injury last night when fire damaged their house at 4807 Davenport st. nw.

Mrs. Ora Early, Mrs. Margaret Tompkins and the latter's son fled from the burning house in their nightclothes to safety.

With smoke pouring through the house, Snowball ran to the bedroom of his owner, Mrs. Early, and awoke her with his frantic barking. Mrs. Early then awoke Mrs. Tompkins and her son. Police said the fire caused extensive damage, but its origin was not immediately determined.

Postlude

Two Novelties Introduced By U. S. Navy Band Orchestra

By Ray C. B. Brown

Lieut. Charles Brendler conducts the U. S. Navy Band Orchestra on Friday night in Departmental Hall. Soloist: David Soyer. Program: Symphony No. 1 in C major (Beethoven), "Omphale's Spinning Wheel" (Saint-Saens), Ballet Suite, "An Island Festival" (Granville English), Violoncello Concerto in C major (Eugene d'Albert), "Carnaval Overture" (Dvorak).

Two novelties, both performed here for the first time, adorned the program of the Navy Band Orchestra's weekly concert last evening in Departmental Hall. One was the violoncello concerto by Eugene Charles Francis d'Albert, the Scottish piano virtuoso and composer who died in 1932 at the age of 68, and the other "An Island Festival" ballet suite by Granville English, an American composer now living in New York, who was present to hear the performance of his work. David Soyer was the soloist, and that means that the concerto was introduced in an eloquent reading.

D'Albert was one of the most picturesque figures of his time, and is remembered in this country by those who heard him play on his tours in 1889, 1892 and 1904. His violoncello concerto is an attractive work, laid out on broad lines and splendidly orchestrated. The style is a blending of classical form, romantic spirit and modern harmonic idiom of the Richard Strauss variety. A strongly energized poesy characterizes the music which has freshness and vigor, and there are several themes that have a haunting quality in their plastic lines. The writing for the solo instrument calls for both tonal beauty and expert technique.

Byron's "Don Juan" is the source of the subtitles ("A Troop of Grecian Girls," "Oriental Writings on the Wall" and "Pyrrhic Dance") in Granville English's ballet suite, which left a very pleasant memory in the ear. Modal harmonies and touches of Mediterranean color make the music piquant. In this work Mr. English is an impressionist who applies his tints skillfully, and the instrumentation shows a discriminating taste in tonal values.

The concert began with Beethoven's first smyphony, in which there is little of the titanic Beethoven and quite a deal of Haydn, particularly in the polished and polite slow movement. This was followed by one of the symphonic poems on mythological subjects by Saint-Saens—"Omphale's Spinning Wheel" with its Lisztian tricks of orchestration. Another familiar work, Dvorak's "Carnaval" overture, closed the program.

Curley, 3 Others Plead Not Guilty in Mail Fraud

Representative James M. Curley, (Democrat) of Massachusetts, and three others indicted recently on charge of conspiracy and mail fraud in a war broker firm here called Engineers Group, Inc., pleaded not guilty yesterday in District Court before Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher.

The others arraigned were Donald Wakefield Smith, former National Labor Relations Board member, of 4000 Cathedral ave. nw., James B. Underwood, Greek Air Force officer, of Louisville, Ky., and Marshall J. Fitzgerald of a "legislative council," 930 16th st. nw.

Fitzgerald had a heart attack in the courtroom and was taken to Casualty Hospital in an ambulance. He was discharged later in the day. All those arraigned were released under $2500 bond after Attorney Nicholas J. Chase asked for an early trial in behalf of Curley and Smith.

Three others indicted are James G. Fuller, now serving a five-year prison term for mail fraud, who pleaded not guilty last week; Bertran Hall, an engineer, of Dallas, Tex., and David Desmond, a securities broker, of Boston. The latter two are to be arraigned within two weeks.

The indictment charged the Engineers Group made fabulous and fraudulent claims as to their ability to obtain contracts with the Government.

Hankin Quotes PUC Minutes To Back Utility Order Charge

Gregory Hankin, minority member of the PUC, last night quoted minutes of the PUC meeting from which an order allowing Washington Gas Light Company to transfer items involving more than $24,500 from suspense accounts to operating expenses was issued to support his previous charge that effort had been made to keep the order secret.

He said the order was adopted after hasty consideration during the meeting and said minutes of the meeting read that the order "shall not be mimeographed nor distributed generally."

Earlier in the day PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan said there was no attempt to keep the action secret, and that passage of the order was a routine matter involving no consideration of "reasonableness and propriety of the legal expenses" involved, which he said would be heard at the next annual rate hearing in connection with operations of the company.

Flanagan said the same situation arose in January, 1943, and at that time "We explained the approval given to the company to transfer regulatory expenses from the suspense account to the proper operating expense account did not mean that we were passing upon the reasonableness or propriety of such items."

He stated also "That when we held our rate hearing in August, 1943, legal expenses allowed for rate-making purposes were but 50 per cent of the total amount of such expenses actually incurred by the company."

Hankin said in reply that "Two wrongs don't make a right." He referred to his dissenting opinion in the current order which says questioning of such a transfer arose last year only because he dissented, and that "when the matter was put in issue in the 1943 rate case, no evidence was introduced by the commission as to the reasonableness of the expenditures for legal services."

Paving, Repair Projects Approved as FWA Jobs

A grant of $21,000 and a loan of $7000 for paving, curbs and sidewalk repairs at 2nd and Newcomb sts. se. and on Chesapeake west from South Capitol st. was approved yesterday by FWA Administrator Philip B. Fleming as a FWA project.

The improvements are necessary to provide access to two Federal Housing Administration projects being constructed for warworkers, it was said.

Hearing Set On New ABC Restrictions

District Commissioners yesterday set January 20 as date for public hearing on new liquor regulations proposed by the ABC Board to provide more record keeping by wholesalers and retailers, tighter regulation of tie-in sales, and display of goods and prices by retailers. The hearings will take place in Room 500 of the old District Building.

The Commissioners will act on the regulations following the hearing on proposals promulgated after public and congressional criticism of the local liquor shortage.

License Suspended

Also yesterday, ABC Board Chairman Thomas E. Lodge announced 10-day suspension of the license of Bernard Bobb, retailer, at 123 G st. nw., for selling a large amount of liquor without a Federal wholesale tax stamp. The suspension, beginning January 20, was ordered under Section 17 of the ABC Act which allows prosecution for use of premises for an "unlawful purpose."

This is the first use of this power by the board to prosecute violations of Federal law other than the ABC Act itself by licensees, according to Lodge. Other Federal cases which may be heard in the future are the "potato cases," involving law violations not concerned with liquor by liquor licensees; floor tax cases; ceiling price cases; and cases based on FTC charges. The board is now considering three ceiling price cases referred to it by OPA.

Other Charges Dropped

The amendments forbid wholesalers or retailers to directly or indirectly require purchase of one alcoholic beverage at the time of purchasing another, require wholesalers to file forms with the board on receipts and sales, require retailers to file forms of receipts and copies of memorandums of sales of 12 or more bottles of spirits and to exhibit daily at least one-twenty-fifth of the whiskies on licensed premises with prices on bottles.

402,900 Users To Get New Phone Book

Better shuffle through the pages of your old telephone directory to make sure that war bonds, credentials and $20 bills have been removed; delivery of 402,900 copies of the winter-spring issue even now is under way.

Just about the same size as its predecessor, the new book (in a Navy slate gray cover) begins in typical Washington alphabetical fashion with the AAA and ends with Albert J. Zyvoloski, an old hand at being the last name in almost any list. First citizen to appear among the A's is Arnold L. Aaberg, but he will find himself giving preference to corporations by a column and a half.

Telephone directory researchists found two Roosevelts, neither of them at 1600 Pennsylvania ave.; 1 Barnaby and 16 O'Malleys, no Hitlers at all, and no mention of the Harry Hopkinses.

4 Persons Injured In 3-Way Crash At Intersection

Four persons were injured in a three-way crash of a streetcar, a Navy station wagon and a sedan at Constitution ave. and 14th st. nw, shortly after 11 o'clock last night.

Those hurt were: Leonard Jackson, 57, and his wife, Mrs. Elsie Jackson, 2601 Davis st., Alexandria, Va., who suffered head cuts; Machinist Mate First Class Harry Pollack, USN, stationed at Solomon's Island, minor injuries, and Howard C. Overly, 30, 4535 Iowa ave., operator of the streetcar. All were treated at Emergency Hospital.

The station wagon, traveling east on Constitution, was struck by the sedan going south on 14th st. The station wagon then was sandwiched between a northbound streetcar and the sedan.

Overly, operator of the street car said that he had more than three year's experience and this was his first accident.

Flier Parachutes From Plane Only To Drown in River

St. Marys, W. Va., Jan. 14 (AP).—A British airman parachuted from his plane shortly before it crashed into a mountainside today only to drown when he landed in the ice-clogged Ohio River, near St. Marys, West Virginia police reported.

A British Air Commission spokesman in Washington confirmed that two British fliers were involved in the crash, but except for saying that the plane was en route to Washington, declined further details.

City News in Brief

Dog From Washington Saves Yanks From Jap Ambushes

Kathe, a 2-year-old Doberman pinscher donated to the Marine Corps by Mrs. James W. Leman, formerly of 2007 R st. nw., was with the Marines who "hit the beach" on Empress Augusta Bay when Bougainville was invaded November 1, and has been in continuous action against the Japs ever since.

According to a story written by Tech. Sergt. Harold Azine of Duluth, Minn., Marine combat correspondent, officers have showered commendation on "the alertness displayed by Kathe and the other dogs which on more than one occasion has saved our patrols from falling into deadly enemy ambushes which otherwise might not have been detected in the dense jungle."

Dog Mascot Flying Home

Rebel, a bomber crew's mascot who went on 20 missions before his master was reported missing in action over New Guinea, is expected to arrive at Washington National Airport at 2:15 p. m. today to be returned to his owner's mother, Mrs. Lillie Katz, 4918 9th st. nw.

Rebel made his flights with Raymond Katz, jr., who failed to return from the first mission on which the smart-looking Boston terrier was left behind.

A lieutenant brought Rebel to San Francisco from New Guinea with a letter signed by a special service officer saying, "it was the desire of the squadron and of the men that Rebel be returned to the States to his master's mother."

Bakery Restraint Asked

In the first action of its kind here, District Court was asked yesterday to prevent the New York K & R Bakery, 809 4th st. sw., from violating War Food Administration regulations.

United States Attorney Edward M. Curran charged the company had distributed bakery products on consignment and permitted the return of unsold bread from the retailer. The WFA does not allow bakers to accept back stale bread from retailers, the regulation being designed to permit retailers only the amount of products that they can sell.

Ration Board 10 to Move

War Price and Rationing Board No. 10 will be closed today so that it can move from its present quarters, 1350 Pennsylvania ave. nw., to 4th and D sts. nw. Board No. 10 will move in with Board No. 12, though both will operate independently, in order to make room for Office of Civilian Defense units in the temporary structure at 1350.

C. N. Howard Reelected

Others elected were Dr. D. Leigh Colvin, president; Dr. William S. Abernathy, first vice president; Judge Clyde L. Garrett, second vice president, and to the board of trustees, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, Senate chaplain; Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, Church of the Reformation; Dr. George S. Duncan, American University; Dr. Daniel A. Poling of Philadelphia, and Henry M. Johnson of Louisville, Ky.

Revealing Poster

A business trip to Washington yesterday resulted in a Colorado lumberman's first knowledge of his son's whereabouts since early December—and all through a Fourth War Loan drive poster in a show window.

It happened this way: Emil M. Johnson of Walden, Colo., in town for a three-day stay, happened to stop before a New York ave. real estate office window to admire a display of Marine Corps pictures of enlisted men unloading supplies on the beach at Tarawa. One face in particular captured his attention; it was his 20-year-old son, Pvt. Fred E. Johnson.

The last letter Private Johnson had sent home arrived December 16 and said merely that he had been wounded without giving further details.

Transfusions Aid Girl

Continued blood transfusions were credited yesterday with keeping alive 7-year-old Ruth McDonald who was severely burned several days ago when her clothing caught fire at a gas stove.

Three officers of the Fifth Precinct, a Catholic University student and relatives of the girl have donated their blood. Casualty Hospital physicians, where Ruth is being treated, said her condition late yesterday was critical. She is the daughter of Mrs. James W. McDonald.

In American U. Post

Carroll Post Anderson, New York businessman, has been named business manager of American University, the board of directors announced after its first meeting of the year yesterday.

ANDERSON

Anderson formerly was consulting accountant for the Philipse Castle restoration sponsored by John D. Rockefeller, jr., in North Tarrytown, N. Y.

At American U. he will manage the College of Arts and Sciences on the campus and the School of Social Sciences and Public Affairs at 1901 F st. nw.

Held in Gas Ration Case

Sam Kushner, 38, of 128 Webster st. nw., pleaded not guilty to charges of illegal possession of gas ration coupons when arraigned in Municipal Court before Judge Thomas D. Quinn yesterday and was granted a jury trial, set for February 7. Kushner was held under $10,000 bond.

At the time of his arrest Thursday night, police declared coupons worth 34,000 gallons of gas and 900 gallons of fuel oil were taken from Kushner.

Held in Threatening

Daniel D. Histon, 33, of 601 K st. ne., was held yesterday in Municipal Court for grand jury action under $1000 bond on a charge of obstructing justice by threatening a complainant in a robbery.

Before Judge Thomas D. Quinn, police said the robbery victim, Charles P. Kinery of 201 8th st. ne., had $38 taken from him in a taxiab. Gordon W. Conover, 29, of 318 16th st. ne., was charged with the crime. Police said that shortly afterward Histon, who was Conover's friend, threatened to harm Kinery if he testified.

Woman Found Dead

Mrs. Sarah Edith Keys, 48, who had been discharged from St. Elizabeths Hospital 10 months ago, was found unconscious yesterday in the gas-filled kitchen of her home at 1445 Fairmont st. nw. Another roomer at the address, Lottie Paterson, reported the incident to police and Dr. F. C. Kelley of the Emergency Hospital staff pronounced Mrs. Keys dead.

Brakeman Injured

Harry L. Strickler, 51, of Silver Spring, Md., a railroad brakeman, suffered serious back injuries yesterday when he fell from a boxcar in the Baltimore & Ohio freight yards, 4th and S sts. ne. He was removed to Emergency Hospital, where his condition was described as critical.

Religion Fails Him

Although he claimed he was only 13 months old, Louis H. Saunders, a Negro, whose birth certificate shows he was born 33 years ago, was convicted and given a 20 months to 5 years sentence yesterday for failing to exhibit a draft registration certificate to an FBI agent.

Saunders testified that he had registered under the draft two years ago but that 13 months ago had become a Moslem and then he was "really born" under his new religion.

Forum on Housing

Housing will be the subject of the first of a series of 10 Saturday morning conferences, beginning today at 9:30 a. m. at Miner Teachers' College, with Hillyard Robinson, John Ihlder, John Nolen, jr., Mrs. Helen D. Hoffman, Albert Cassell and Mrs. D. I. Miller participating.

A round table discussion centering around religion will follow at 11:15 a. m., led by the Rev. Robert M. Williams, the Rev. Paul H. Furfey, the Rev. Francis W. McPeek and the Rev. William E. Carrington. There will be two conferences each Saturday morning through March 25. The public is invited to attend.

Senators Act To Study D.C. National Vote

By James E. Chinn

Chairman Van Nuys of the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday created a special subcommittee to consider the Sumners-Capper joint resolution designed to grant national representation to the District and appointed at its head, Senator McCarran (Democrat) of Nevada, who at present is leading a move for local suffrage only.

Senator Capper (Republican) of Kansas, coauthor of the national representation resolution saw in the action a renewed effort to give the disfranchised residents of the District the privilege of electing representatives in Congress and voting for President and Vice President.

Unity Desired

Representative Sumners (Democrat of Texas, House sponsor of the resolution, however, did not respond so optimistically. He frankly admitted he did not believe much progress would be made until the people of the District demonstrate through unity of attitude and interest just what form of suffrage they want.

"I have never discovered any unity of attitude or unity of interest in the District about my resolution," he declared.

Simultaneous with appointment of the special subcommittee, Van Nuys made public a six-month-old letter from the Commissioners which quoted the Budget Bureau as saying the resolution at that time was not in accord with the President's program.

Resolution Indorsed

The Commissioners, on the other hand, strongly indorsed the resolution and said the plan for national representation it embodies "is entirely consistent with the form of government set up in the Constitution."

Their letter, dated July 21, 1943, said further: "That document contemplated a government by the people in which taxes were to be levied and laws enacted controlling the actions of the people only through representatives duly elected by the people. The inhabitants of the District of Columbia today must obey laws and pay taxes without representation in the legislature which enacts the laws or levies the taxes. The population of the District today is in excess of that of 12 States (census of 1940). Certainly it is not in keeping with our theory of government that hundreds of thousands of citizens be disfranchised merely because they happen to be domiciled within the District of Columbia, when citizens of States containing smaller populations are granted the full right of suffrage."

Others On Committee

Named to serve with McCarran on the subcommittee were Senators Wheeler (Democrat) of Montana, Wiley of Wisconsin (Republican) and Wherry of Nebraska (Republican).

The Sumners-Capper resolution would, through an amendment to the Constitution, empower Congress to grant national representation to the District and determine the number and the powers of the representatives it would elect to Congress. The so-called "home rule" bill of Senator McCarran provides for local suffrage only—a privilege of voting for members of a city council who in turn would select a city manager to be the administrative head of a proposed new municipal government.

Plasma Here Totals 14 Pints For Texas Boy

The blood plasma collected here for little Billy Meers in a campaign sponsored by The Washington Post will be given the 4-year-old victim of chronic nephritis as soon as tests are completed this week, according to his physician in Dallas, Tex.

Meanwhile, the doctor said, Billy's condition has not yet reached an emergency stage, although some swelling has set in.

"He could swell up like a balloon and we could bring him out of it with plasma," he asserted.

At Gallinger Hospital, from which blood donations had been rushed to Texas by plane, there are at present 14 pints of blood still in reserve, awaiting further need for the little boy. Twenty-two Washingtonians gave the precious fluid in response to appeals published here early this week.

The Dallas hospital blood bank, which last Saturday stated that further transfusions could not be given Billy until donors made up a 100-pint deficit, said yesterday that the child now owes only 55 pints. Two transfusions a day have been necessary since last September to keep him alive.

Loan 'Kick-Off' Monday

The Washington Board of Trade will send off Washington's share in the Fourth War Loan Drive at the Mayflower Hotel, Monday at 8 p. m., when Rear Admiral Thomas L. Gatch, Judge Advocate General of the Navy, who commanded Battleship "X," and three Hollywood stars will lead the pleas for "extra" war bond subscriptions.

GATCH

John A. Reilly, chairman of the D. C. War Finance Committee, who also will speak, will present to Admiral Gatch the D. C. seal which is to be inscribed on a group of carrier-based planes, financed by Washington contributors to the Third War Loan Drive.

BARNABY By Crockett Johnson

"Gentleman Jim O'Malley," they used to ask me, "to what do you attribute your unrivaled prowess in the manly art of self-defense?" . . . And I'd set down my glass and cigar and pool cue and say, "Clean living and ROADWORK!" . . . So—
But, O'Malley! Around the reservoir? It's five miles!
Now you run with Gus and keep him company. Don't go chasing laundry wagons or—
Where could I find a laundry wagon?
Well, they're off at last, m'boy. Sometimes I think Gus wasn't cut out to be a fighter . . . But the sport has to be kept alive. . . . With the best we have left. Until Joe Louis comes back . . .

Soldiers Hail 'Revival Tent' At Italy Front

In the last week or so, one of the national magazines, carried an article about the Russian "bath train," donated by a group of Russians, which rolled right up near the front to give the soldiers their favorite steam baths. Perhaps, as did many, you wondered about the bath arrangements for our own soldiers.

Comes now a release from the War Department in direct and full answer to those questions. Only in "this man's Army" it is known as "the revival tent," and it is being put to excellent use in the mudfields of Italy.

Says the WD release "Minutes after they have been relieved temporarily from front-line duty, men of Fifth Army units in Italy stream toward a tent city on the banks of the upper Volturno River. Within an hour they emerge, showered, shaved and wearing complete new uniforms issued in exchange for the battered, mud-spattered outfits they had worn in battle."

HE GETS HIS TUBBING

These "revival tents," a development of the Fifth Army's Quartermaster, have given many an American fighting man his first chance for a hot bath since landing in Italy early in September.

So if you've been worrying about Johnny or Little Joe getting proper tubbing, you can comfort yourself if he's in the Italian Theater of war.

For, according to Sergt. S. H. Abrahams, who is in charge of the shower tents, the "revival tents," are going to keep moving. "Wherever the infantrymen go, we travel somewhere close behind. When we move forward, we'll be able to pitch our tents and have everything running within a few hours."

Corpl. Roland S. Wells of Upper Marlboro, Md., has a pretty enthusiastic opinion of the proceedings also. From his vantage point as assistant shower foreman he has seen hundreds of war-weary soldiers unload from trucks just back from the front and line up for their baths and new uniforms.

"It's a sight I'll never forget," says Corporal Wells.

"About 30 minutes later I see the same men leave the quartermaster tents, completely outfitted. You can hardly recognize them. They are shining clean, all smiles, and they feel good!"

"A REAL PRESENT"

A veteran of the major battles in Tunisia, Pvt. Lester Sandback of Chicago (who has at times had one canteen of water to serve him for drinking and bathing for two days at a stretch) sums it up thus:

"Boy, this new long underwear and uniform is a real holiday present, but the real treat was that hot shower. I've been fighting Jerry hell-and-gone up the mountains and this is the first chance at a shower I've had in Italy."

"The last time I took a bath was in a steel helmet," adds Pvt. Lee McMillan of Colesburg, Ky. "This hot shower is the last thing I expected to find up front."

To set up the tents, the Quartermaster had to pump water half a mile and then heat it to 106 degrees for the showers. "Also," adds Sergeant Abrahams, "we sterilize the hundreds of old uniforms left behind by the GI's who take showers and then draw new equipment."

They worked three days and two nights to set up the supply, laundry, shoe repair and hot-water shower units of this Fifth Army tent city. But, watching the enthusiastic approval of the bather, all those who worked on the project agreed it was worth it.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Douglas Rollow announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Frances, to Lieut. Henry T. Allan 3d, son of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Henry T. Allen, now stationed at Miami Beach, Fla.

Miss Rollow is a graduate of Mount Vernon Seminary and is a member of the Junior League of Washington. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Edgar Edmonston of Washington.

Lieutenant Allen is a graduate of Portsmouth Priory School of Rhode Island and attended Harvard University. At the close of his sophomore year he enlisted in the United States Army and received his commission at Fort Sill, Okla., in June 1943. The prospective bridegroom is the grandson of the late Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, who commanded the American Army of Occupation on the Rhine and who was also American representative of the Rhineland High Commission after the first World War.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Guachallas Bid Friends Adieu

The Peruvian Ambassador, Manuel de Freyre, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the embassy in honor of the retiring Ambassador of Bolivia and Senora de Guachalla, who will leave this morning by plane to begin their journey back to Bolivia.

In the late afternoon the Ambassador and Senora de Guachalla said a last goodby to their close friends at a small tea which they gave at the embassy.

Arthur C. Smiths In New York for Anniversary Fetes

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith left Washington last evening for a brief trip to New York, where they will celebrate their thirty-seventh wedding anniversary.

They will be entertained this morning by Admiral L. C. Covell of the United States Coast Guard, and will review the Coast Guard Regiment before attending a luncheon given by the admiral in their honor.

Frank Carstorphen, former assistant district attorney of New York City, will entertain the Smiths tonight at a dinner at the Stork Club.

James A. Farley will confer with Mr. Smith tomorrow morning, after which Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Motley will entertain Mr. and Mrs. Smith at the Country Club. The Smiths will return to Washington Sunday evening.

Admr., Mrs. Pott Entertain for Lt. Otway-Smithers

Rear Admiral H. Pott, British Naval Attache, and Mrs. Pott entertained at a late-afternoon party yesterday in honor of Lieut. P. H. B. Otway-Smithers, Assistant Naval Attache, and Mrs. Otway-Smithers, who recently arrived here from Mexico City.

Lieut. Otway-Smithers is attached to the British Embassy in Mexico City and also holds the same position here. He and his wife are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, jr. A number of fetes have been planned in honor of the popular naval officer and his wife.

Jane Biesecker To Be Married

Mr. and Mrs. Earle B. Biesecker of Riverdale, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Jane Biesecker, to Pfc. David Fowler Bell, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. David Fowler Bell of Dundalk, Md.

Miss Biesecker is a senior at the University of Maryland and will be graduated in March. She is president of the Alpha Xi Delta Sorority and vice president of Pan Hellenic Council.

Private Bell was graduated from the University of Maryland in 1942 and is now attending the University of Maryland Medical School in Baltimore. He is a member of Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Hospitality To 'Hypo' Is Morale Builder

All good soldiers in the Washington area eventually contact charming Lydia Langer, daughter of the Senator from North Dakota and Mrs. Langer, if they're seeking the cheerful hospitality of the Home Hospitality Committee, under the direction of Mrs. Martin Vogel. As Mrs. Vogel's secretary Miss Langer contacts many servicemen, among whom was Capt. Robert Thorpe of the White House Guard.

A crisis in Captain Thorpe's life came with a call to several weeks' maneuvers in Maryland and the consequent problem of leaving Hypo, a pup of mixed origin who lives in the guard barracks near the White House, in good hands. Dear to the captain's heart is Hypo, his bosom friend for two years now. But the Army has rules and regulations, which take care that pups, even personable ones like Hypo, don't go on maneuvers.

So these days Hypo, arrayed in khaki coat with sergeant's stripes and gold buttons, is close at the heels of Miss Langer, both at the office of the Home Hospitality Committee and at home, when she takes both Hypo and her dignified Scottie, MacGregor, out for an evening stroll. All of which accounts for the improved morale of one Captain Thorpe, who knows his dog is well attended.

Purely Personal

The British Ambassador, Viscount Halifax, returned to Washington last evening from Cincinnati, where he made an address on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. David Lawrence left yesterday for Sarasota, Fla., where Mrs. Lawrence plans to remain for several months. Mr. Lawrence will return to Washington shortly.

Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner will entertain at an "after 5:30" gathering today in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Adams, who recently came to Washington from Los Angeles. Mr. Adams, an outstanding West Coast banker, is on duty with the Navy Department, and most of Mrs. Miner's guests this afternoon will be naval officers.

George Healy, new director of Domestic Operations, OWI, and Mrs. Healy will be the guests in whose honor Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward of the Social Security Board will entertain at a late afternoon party today in her Westchester apartment.

Honoring Mrs. Carlisle's brother, Charles O'Connell, who will be guest conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra at the "15 to 30" concert Saturday evening, Capt. and Mrs. Hollis Carlisle will entertain at their home in Georgetown after the performance.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Rand of Cleveland, Ohio, are in Washington for several days and are stopping at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Miss Aileen Havlin Harris, who left Thursday for Chicago, will return to Washington on January 26.

Capt. Lucius Clay, Jr., Weds Florida Girl

Now stationed at Lakeland, Fla., where he and his bride will make their home, is Capt. Lucius Du Bignon Clay, jr., son of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Clay of Washington. The bride is the former Miss Betty Rose Commander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Commander of Tampa, Fla.

With the Rev. Martin J. Bram officiating the wedding took place last week at St. Andrews' Episcopal Church in Tampa. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in ivory duchess satin, and she carried a shower bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Zaida Clay of Atlanta, cousin of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Sally Taliaferro and Miss Carroll Cone.

Maj. Gen. Lucius D. Clay attended his son as best man. Serving as ushers were Capt. William D. Brady, Capt. Howard M. Fender, Capt. Edward P. Foote, Capt. Henry P. Kozlowski, Carlton C. Cone and E. P. Taliaferro.

Mrs. Clay attended the Pine Manor junior college, Wellesley, Mass. Capt. Clay is a graduate of West Point. He received his wings with the Air Force and is now stationed at Lakeland, Fla.

Brink—Revercomb

The recent marriage of Miss Virginia Lee Revercomb of McLean, Va., to Russell H. Brink of Trenton, N. J., is announced by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Revercomb of McLean, Va.

Mr. Brink is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brink of Trenton, N. J. The ceremony took place at the Langley Methodist Church, McLean, Va., with Rev. Esdras Gruver officiating.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with sweetheart neckline and fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of white orchids.

Attending the bride was Mrs. Everett E. Revercomb, and best man for Mr. Brink was Ensign Everett E. Revercomb. Serving as ushers were Clinton Florance and Marvin H. Kirby.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the Rixey Mansion in Arlington.

Mrs. Brink attended Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, and Mr. Brink who has spent the past two years on the Alaska Highway, is a graduate engineer of Rutgers University.

Fussell—Robertson

Lieut. George F. Fussell U. S. Army Air Force, and his bride, the former Miss Mary Robertson, whose marriage took place last Sunday, left after an informal wedding reception for New York and will go to Nova Scotia to visit the bride's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Alexander William Robertson of Great Village. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Fussell of Washington.

The ceremony took place in the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church with the Rev. J. Hillman Hollister officiating. The bride was given in marriage by Group Capt. Frank R. West, RCAF. She wore a gown of white satin and carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and sweet peas. Miss Helen Buchanan, of Toronto, who was maid of honor, was in tea rose shade and carried a bouquet of blue iris and pink sweet peas. Lieut. (j. g.) John Warren, USNR, served as best man, and the ushers were Lieut. Philip Fairchild, AUSMCR, and Master Sergt. Kennett L. Fussell, brother of the bridegroom who arrived from overseas just in time for the wedding.

Good-Neighbors Form Club For Better Relations

A number of good-neighbor diplomats are showing interest in the Liceo de las Americas, a club being formed to promote better understanding between the countries of the Western Hemisphere.

The first meeting of the organization will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Latin American Institute when officers will be elected and a program for the coming season will be outlined. Lectures and courses in Latin-American history and literature are to be arranged and also dances, musicales and movies.

Among the members of the executive committee are Senorita Cristina Michels, Senorita Laura Recinos, Senorita Sylvia Brull, Carlos Dorado Chopitea, Senorita Teresa Labarthe, Raul Diez de Medina, Aranda Linares, Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Miss Lilita Dawson, Miss Emily French Myers, William Harris, Dudley Blossom, jr., and Capt. Franklin Salsbury.

White House Visitor

Mrs. John Roosevelt has arrived for a visit at the White House. Also staying on there for some time will be Mrs. John Boettiger, who came East from her Seattle, Wash., home shortly before the holidays.

Harris & Ewing

Miss Louise Marie Dickhaut, whose engagement to Lieut. (j. g.) John Edmond Jackson is announced by her mother, Mrs. Mary L. Dickhaut.

Dr. Rodriguez To Leave Soon For London

Dr. Vicente Valdes Rodriguez, recently returned from Havana with a promotion from Counselor to Minister-Counselor, has received word of his transfer to London, to serve with the same rank at the Cuban Legation there. He will leave shortly, leaving Senora de Rodriguez in Washington with plans to join him later.

Dr. Rodriguez has been at the embassy here since 1937. This makes his third assignment in the Capital, his first being as Third Secretary in 1923. After three years he was transferred to another post and returned in 1933 with the rank of first secretary.

Like many other legations in this war period, which have been elevated to embassies, the Cuban Legation in London, will in all probability be raised in rank shortly.

Stage Door Canteen Food Genius Sets Fast Pace for Volunteers

By Genevieve Reynolds

Interested in servicemen's food preferences? Or looking for a specialty dish to serve your sailor beau? If so, consult affable, hard-working Mary Turner, co-chairman of the food bar committee of Washington's American Theater Wing Stage Door Canteen. She's ready with a knowing answer.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

Organizer of the food bar, she has been on hand practically every Thursday—day and night—to plan, supervise the canteen's menu on that day. Then she serves as captain of the day. She has stuck to her job since the canteen first opened. Not only does she plan the menu, but pitches in, sleeves rolled up, to actually prepare the food. True, her employer, the Potomac Electric Power Co., gives her time off to work there. But she doesn't stop with the eight-hour day. She stays on four or five hours that night.

Last summer when Brock Pemberton, national organizer of the Stage Door Canteens, got stuck for sandwich ideas, he wired efficient Mary for suggestions. Immediately, she came through with an original one—a raw vegetable and cream cheese mixture on whole wheat bread. Thus the West Coast had a new sandwich—or rather the boys who dropped into the canteen out there.

Taste Test Exponent

When the Washington canteen first opened Miss Turner worked from 9:30 a. m. to midnight. She does a lot of tasting . . . she decides how much salt goes in the soup, how much seasoning goes into this or that. Each Thursday, she prepares some new specialty, cream of peanut soup, tomato rarebit. Last summer she inaugurated the smorgasbord ideas.

At least three or four hours a week are spent in attending executive meetings of the canteen. That's extra. In addition, Miss Turner is serving on the newly organized consumer nutrition committee, Civilian War Services, District of Columbia. The committee will plunge into the city's consumer nutrition problems. Just how many hours of volunteer work will go into this job is still a moot question. But you can bet your last candy bar that she will stick by and do her part, whether it be 4 or 14 hours a week. Each Wednesday night, Miss Turner conducts a nutrition class that is open to the public. Also, for her company, she compiles a weekly booklet on wartime menus and recipes.

MARY TURNER

And That's Not All

Several times a week, pretty blonde Miss Turner gives lectures and demonstrations in nutrition for the Red Cross and the American Woman's Voluntary Services. In addition, she gives lecture demonstrations to clubs, organized groups and in schools. In other words, she shows them how to use and to take care of household electrical appliances.

Conservatively speaking, she gives 24 hours a week to war work as a volunteer. Half of her time at the office is devoted to war services. Director of her company's Home Service Department, she puts in all her time helping housewives, whether it be menus or how to shop for curtain materials. She says that she doesn't sell anything—it's all educational work. Actually, alert Mary Turner organized the Home Service Department 19 years ago. She has been its director ever since.

A native Washingtonian, she was graduated from the Notre Dame Convent and George Washington University. Home Economics was her major. Member of the Soroptimist Club, she has served as its vice president and chairman of the program committee. From time to time, she has held various other offices in the club.

Bridge Out for Duration

An excellent bridge player, she has given it up for the duration. Modestly she declares that she really isn't doing a sacrificial war job. But what with holding down a regular bread and butter job—full time—and voluntarily giving from 24 to 30 hours a week to various types of war work, we dispute her on that score.

There's one point on which she is adamant—if you take a volunteer job, stick to it. Don't let anything short of illness keep you away. Miss Turner generously praises the volunteer workers who faithfully labor at the Canteen's food bar. She says that no task is too menial for them to perform so long as it makes the boys happy.

The Gentler Sex

Pledge to the War Wounded

(For a Woman at Home)

I will begin now faithfully and prayerfully training myself for the test of battle I am soon to meet—that of welcoming back the war wounded and making them feel that it is home as usual.

If I see a maimed serviceman on the streets, I will firmly stifle any urge to stare curiously, or to turn away with the slightest gesture of shrinking, or to let even a shadow of commiseration cross my face. I will summon all the sensitivity of mind and aristocracy of soul I possess, and give him the casual, matter-of-fact glance I would give any stranger.

I will never, under any circumstances, be so boorish and unfeeling as to ask any serviceman about his wounds or to seek to draw him out on his battle experiences.

I will never, in a public place, comment to a companion, even in a whisper, about a serviceman whose battle injuries are apparent. I will realize that even though he may not see or hear me, his acute sensitivity will make him unhappily aware that he is a subject of attention.

I will never let the term, "Poor fellow!" pass my lips—or abide for a moment in my thoughts—in connection with a battle-scarred serviceman.

If anyone I know or love lies wounded in a far-away hospital, I will not write him dishearteningly, or too curiously and anxiously, but will rather try to make him feel that I am not unduly worried or alarmed and am not attaching too much importance to the physical afflictions he has suffered. I will try to communicate to him my calm, cheerful and hopeful acceptance of whatever has befallen him.

If any member of my family returns partly whole from this war, I will make it my major undertaking to see that he is treated as far as possible as a completely whole and normal person.

For the sake of all those men in my orbit of life who may return home sick or wounded in body or mind, I will cultivate in myself the habit of cheerfulness. I will cherish about me joy, laughter and gayety, both now and later, knowing that these things often have more curative value than medicine.

I will determinedly root out of my own nature any neurotic, shrinking attitude toward those who bear the permanent marks of battle. I will train myself to regard these scars with reverence as testimonials of human courage and character.

I will constantly remind myself of the mental achievements of great men and women who have been physically handicapped. I will remember St. Paul the Apostle, the lame Queen of Sheba, the blind Homer and the blind Milton, the deaf Beethoven, the crippled Alexander Pope, the invalid Stevenson—and I will also remember that one of the foremost figures right now in world leadership, who is also the President of the United States, attained his distinctions under physical handicaps as severe as most wounded veterans will return with.

I will try to meet this test of battle behind the lines with as much courage and steadfastness as the brave men who incurred these wounds displayed at the battle front to guarantee to me the way of life I now enjoy.

Lee-Jackson Ball Set For Wednesday Night

The Society of Virginia will hold its annual Lee-Jackson Ball Wednesday evening at the Willard Hotel. This ball will be attended by impersonators of Generals Lee and Jackson together with presidents of each chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy and representatives of all Confederate organizations of the District of Columbia and vicinity. Arrangements are being made for a male quartet to sing southern melodies.

Lawyers of Both Sexes to Debate

The Women's Bar Association of the District of Columbia will hold its regular meeting Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the Pan American Room of the Hotel Statler. The president, Mrs. Nadine Lane Gallagher, will preside.

In addition to regular business, the program committee, of which Miss Doris Williamson is chairman, has arranged a debate between Justin L. Edgerton and James R. Kirkland, members of the Bar Association of the District of Columbia, and Mary R. McLean and Charlotte Slavitt, members of the Women's Bar Association. The subject will be "Do Women Make Better Lawyers Than Men?" The men will attempt to prove that they do, while the women will refute this.

Make Furniture to Offset Shortages

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

If the man of the family is just reasonably good at carpentry, the chances are he can do as well as some of the pioneers in this land who had to make their own furniture or do without. They used the wood at hand, the tools available, what skill they had.

The secret of their success was that they didn't attempt something fancier than they could execute. And it is this forthright utilitarianism of their furniture that makes us prize such antiques today. There was honesty and usefulness in every line of them so that the plainest woods, the humblest craftsmanship command respect.

Today two kinds of furniture can be successfully made at home. Your choice had better depend first on the materials you have at hand. If you have some old discarded furniture in attic or basement, consider the possibilities of making it over.

If the piece is structurally good, maybe it becomes simply a matter of removing gewgaws, changing the handles or trim, or feet, making other minor alterations and then refinishing it. If you see no future in it as it stands, maybe there are some slabs of good hardwood that can be used as raw material for a new piece. Perhaps there are ornamental parts that can be used for wall brackets or pedestals.

From Odds and Ends

If there is no discarded furniture to draw on for material, collect those pieces of board you've been putting aside from time to time. Look for odds and ends at the lumber yard. There is a shortage of many types of lumber, of course, but a few lengths for small furniture are often still obtainable. You may not be able to find the finer hardwoods, but much of our treasured early American furniture was of simple woods, too. Pine is no aristocrat of furniture woods, but many a stanch old piece was made of it.

As for tools—if you can't add all the gadgets you'd like to your collection in these wartimes, just remember that the pioneers didn't have such a good assortment of implements either. Often they had to make their own. So the usual family tool box holds enough tools to achieve simple pieces, and the hardware stores are still able to fill in some of the gaps.

Specific measured directions can be obtained in books available in most public libraries. It will save a lot of trials and errors to study one of these before embarking on an opus. Don't attempt too much originality in designing till you're pretty sure of yourself! The safest bets are the simplest pieces.

Some Plain Suggestions

And what are these pieces? Well, small, plain tables, benches, lift-lid chests, bunk-beds—these are the easiest to tackle if you're building the entire piece from scratch. If you are making over, you can go in for more intricate pieces providing the essential structure is there to start with.

Unless you are awfully good, don't attempt to build a drawer or a chair from the ground up. Charming coffee tables can be made with parts of old carved bedposts or old-fashioned dining table pedestals for bases.

Morris Plan Bank Reports $58,568 Net

By S. Oliver Goodman

The Morris Plan Bank of Washington yesterday reported net income of $58,568 for 1943, equivalent to $3.34 a share on common stock. This compared with $39,815, or $3.68 a share in the previous year.

Before provision of $58,809 for Federal income taxes, net earnings last year were $123,486. In 1942, Federal income taxes totaled $9258 and net earnings were $80,938.

Executive Vice President L. P. Harrell told stockholders in the annual report that the bank in 1943 had the largest loan volume in its 18-year history—$7,053,661 as compared with $5,934,794, the previous peak.

Total resources have more than doubled during the past five years, Mr. Harrell further pointed out. Resources at the end of 1943 aggregated $9,085,333, as compared with $4,096,546 at the end of 1939.

Actuaries to Confer

The first full meeting of the special advisory committee of life insurance actuaries, appointed by the Veterans' Administration to act as consultant in matters concerning National Service Life Insurance, will be held Monday in the offices of Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Administration, in Washington.

The new committee consists of: Ray D. Murphy, vice president and actuary, Equitable Life Assurance Society, chairman; Horace Bassford ford, actuary, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.; Valentine Howell, vice president and actuary, Prudential Insurance Co.; A. J. McAndless, president, Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., and William Breiby, vice president, Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Builders Group to Meet Here

The war housing job cannot be completed unless builders are given priority parity with the Army, Navy and Maritime Commission for certain materials and equipment, Joseph E. Merrion, first vice president of the National Association of Home Builders, asserted yesterday.

Merrion said in a statement that he had called a five-day meeting of the association's emergency committee in Washington, beginning Monday. He said the committee would meet with National Housing Administrator John B. Blandford, jr., and Federal Housing Commissioner Abner H. Ferguson.

Tens of thousands of units approaching completion are being left in an unfinished state," Merrion said, "because hardwood flooring, furnaces, hot water heaters, bathtubs, refrigerators or electric ranges are lacking."

Peoples Drug Sales Up 6.7%

Net sales of Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., were $34,773,695 in 1943, a gain of 6.7 per cent over the $32,603,812 in 1942, Treasurer W. H. Churchill reported last night.

December sales showed a drop of 2.3 per cent, totaling $3,825,941 as compared with $3,914,895 in the same months last year.

Stocks Mount On Investment Demand Spur

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—Investment demand and a little inflationary nibbling turned the stock market tide today and leaders recovered fractions to a point or so with isolated favorites up better than 3.

Principal inspiration for the comeback was attributed to the fact idle funds, which had been holding aloof on the hope lower purchasing levels would be reached, reappeared because hesitancy of the previous two sessions had failed to bring out stock.

Overnight consideration of the budget message calling for expenditures of around 100 billion dollars in the next fiscal year revived inflation thinking to some extent and caused the reinstatement of commitments here and there, especially in several gold mining issues.

The R-K-O senior stock was a stellar performer as the exdividend date for this issue approached in which shareholders are to receive accumulations of $15.50 and a regular payment of $1.50.

Railway loans exhibited strength in the liveliest bond market since last May. At Chicago wheat was unchanged to up ¾ of a cent a bushel. Cotton was unchanged to 20 cents a bale lower.

Va. Utilities Merger Hearing Set by SEC

Philadelphia, Jan. 14 (AP).—A hearing on Engineers Public Service Co.'s plan to acquire Virginia Public Service Co. and merge it into Virginia Electric & Power Co. will be held February 1, the Securities and Exchange Commission said today.

Engineers Public Service would pay General Gas & Electric Corp., Public Service's parent, $2,500,000 for 782,000 shares of the subsidiary's common stock and a claim of Escrow funds amounting to $1,165,167. The claim would be surrendered to Electric as a capital contribution.

Illness Postpones NASD Hearing

Philadelphia, Jan. 14 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange Commission postponed today until February 29 an oral argument to review disciplinary action taken by the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., against members for alleged violations of its rules of fair practice in connection with the sale of Public Service Co. of Indiana bonds.

The argument, scheduled for January 20, was postponed at the request of the association due to the continued illness of its counsel.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Jan. 14 (AP).—After selling off in the early trading wheat reversed its direction today when previous short sellers tried to cover their positions and found the market with few offerings. The grain advanced above the preceding day's close with deferred deliveries setting the pace. Other grains were only steady.

The upturn in wheat was aided by reports that Government agencies had made further acceptances of flour. Shipping sales out of this market totaled 87,000 bushels, the largest for some time. Despite the upturn, trading was at a fairly slow pace with little evidence that commercial interests were taking an important part in the market.

At the close wheat was unchanged to ¾ higher, May 1.71; oats were ⅜ lower to ½ higher, May 75⅝@75½; rye was ⅜ lower to ½ higher, May 1.30¾@1.30⅝, and barley was ⅜ to ½ higher, May 1.22¼.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the District of Columbia holding Probate Court. Estate of Joseph C. Rossiter, deceased. No. 62272. Administration Docket 132. The notification as to the trial of the issues in this case relating to the validity of the paper writing, dated the 22nd day of October, 1940, purporting to be the last will and testament of Joseph C. Rossiter, deceased, having been returned as to George Rossiter and William Warren Rossiter "not to be found." It is this 4th day of January, 1944, ordered that the issues be set down for trial on the 14TH DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1944, and that this order and the substance of said issues, to wit: One: Is the paper writing filed in this cause, dated October 22, 1940, the last will and testament of Joseph C. Rossiter, deceased? Two: Was the said Joseph C. Rossiter, deceased, at the time of making and subscribing or of the acknowledging by him of the said paper writing dated October 22, 1940, of sound and disposing mind and capable of making a valid deed or contract? shall be published once a week for four weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and twice a week for the same period in The Washington Post. EDWARD C. EICHER, Chief Justice. Attest: (Seal.) VICTOR S. MERSCH, Register of Wills for the District of Columbia, Clerk of the Probate Court. 15,22,29

ORILLE C. GAUDETTE, Attorney,
Earle Building.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the District of Columbia. In re the dissolution of Boston Buffet Lunch, Inc. (a corporation). Civil Action No. 19909. Order of publication. The object of this suit is the application of the majority of officers and all of the stockholders of Boston Buffet Lunch, Inc., a corporation, duly incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia, on the 19th day of July, 1933, that the said corporation be dissolved. On motion of the plaintiff, it is this 30th day of December, 1943, ordered that all persons interested in said corporation appear herein and show cause by FEBRUARY 16, 1944, if any they have, why it should not be dissolved and notice of this order shall be published in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post for three successive weeks, the first insertion to be not less than one month before the day fixed for showing cause as aforesaid. T. DICKINSON LETTS, Justice. Attest: (Seal.) CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By EMMA C. SIMPSON, Deputy Clerk. 8,15,22

FREDERICK S. TYLER, Attorney,
Woodward Building. (5)

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the District of Columbia, holding a Probate Court. Estate of Corrie Cassin Shoemaker, deceased. No. 62728. Administration Docket 133. Application having been made herein for probate of the last will and testament of said deceased, and for letters testamentary on said estate, to Frederick S. Tyler, it is ordered this 10th day of January, A. D. 1944, that Thomas C. Kinkaid and all others concerned, appear in said court on Monday, the 21st day of February, A. D. 1944, at 10 o'clock a. m., to show cause why such application should not be granted. Let notice hereof be published in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post once in each of three successive weeks before the return day herein mentioned, the first publication to be not less than thirty days before said return day. Witness, the Honorable EDWARD C. EICHER, Chief Justice of said court, this 10th day of January, A. D. 1944. Attest: (Seal.) THOMAS C. SCULLEY, Deputy Register of Wills for the District of Columbia, Clerk of the Probate Court. 15,22,29

DONALD DUCK — By Walt Disney

MY BALL HIT THE LITTLE ONE!
MINE DID! YOURS HIT THE BIG ONE!
EITHER MY BALL HIT THE LITTLE WINDOW.... OR ELSE! GET IT?
OKAY, OKAY!
WE'RE HERE T' GET OUR BALLS AND PAY FOR THE DAMAGE!
OKAY, C'MON IN!

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Double Time—Double Talk — By Milton Caniff

OH, CAPTAIN MIDI... YOUR HOUSE BOY BROUGHT YOUR KIT...
THAT FLIGHT OFFICER LEE IS A CRAZY KID... WHEN THE BOY BROUGHT CAPTAIN MIDI'S BAG IT FELL OPEN...
WE WERE PICKING UP THE STUFF AND WE NOTICED THE BOY HAD FORGOTTEN TO SEND THE CAPTAIN'S RAZOR—LEE YELLED 'HOLY SMOKE! THIS IS IT!' AND RAN OUT LIKE A SHOT!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

GYPSY!··I··· I WANT TO HELP YOU····!
BETTER RUN ALONG, JUNIOR! YA MIGHT GET HIT BY A CHIP FROM A BROKEN DREAM!
I SPOSE, MR. FLANAGAN, IT WAS THAT HIGHLY RESPECTED HORSE-COLLAR, MAX FALCON, WHO TOLD YOU I WAS IN ELM CITY?
NO··THE TIP WAS ANONYMOUS, MISS MONEZ!
IF THE LETTER WAS WRITTEN IN SKUNK OIL, NO SIGNATURE WAS NEEDED!
I'M NOT ASHAMED TO ADMIT I NOTIFIED POLICE! IT'S A GOOD CITIZEN'S DUTY TO TURN IN A CROOK!
WHOA NOW, MR. FALCON! WHO EVER SAID THIS LITTLE LADY WAS A CROOK?
W-WHAT?

HICKEY FINN — News From the Front — By Lank Leonard

IT CERTAINLY WAS GOOD TO SEE PHILIP GOING OFF TO WORK AGAIN THIS MORNING, FLOSSIE!
YES, INDEED! I GUESS HE'S BACK ON THE BEAM NOW — FOR AWHILE!
FLOSSIE! LETTERS FROM MICHAEL AND TOM!
T-THEY'RE AT PEARL HARBOR!
Y-YES!

MR. AND MRS. — When Women Get Together — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover

MY HUSBAND SAYS HE NEVER SAW A MAN LOOK AS YOUNG AS YOUR HUSBAND DOES
OH, MY GOODNESS! I MUST TELL JIM THAT. HE'S ALWAYS COMPLAINING OF FEELING OLD ALWAYS COMPLAINING?
YES, HE OFTEN SAYS HE WISHES HE HAD HALF THE PEP YOUR JOE SEEMS TO HAVE
WELL! THAT WILL BE NEWS TO JOE. HE THINKS HE HAS ALL THE AILMENTS THERE ARE
HE DOES? SO DOES JIM
MEN ARE FUNNY
AREN'T THEY! THEY DON'T HAVE HALF THE AILMENTS WE HAVE

DIXIE DUGAN — Not Necessary — By J. P. McEvoy and H. J. Striebel

THE FIRST LETTER SEEMS TO BE O.K.—
NOW LET'S SEE— MR. CHARLES PELGRAM UNEEDED OIL, INC.
HMMM
OH PLEASE PLEASE DON'T LET HER READ ALL OF THESE OH—I GUESS IT WON'T BE NECESSARY TO READ ALL OF THESE G-ULP
HERE!—WHAT'S THE MATTER?—ARE YOU ILL?
I-I JUST NEED A LITTLE AIR, I GUESS

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Wind Shifts — By Frank Martinek

GOOD LUCK AND GOD BLESS YOU, LIEUTENANT!
THANKS! I'LL BE NEEDING IT! MY LEAVE IS UP AND I'M GOING BACK!
TRAVELER'S REST
THAT'S AMERICAN YOUTH FOR YOU... DOWN TODAY AND UP TOMORROW!
CAPTAIN CLEMENT OF THE POLICE DEPARTMENT CALLED SEVERAL TIMES...SAYS IT'S IMPORTANT!
I KNEW IT! HERE WE GOE... THERE WE GO! NEVER A DULL MOMENT!

RIGHT AROUND HOME — By Dudley Fisher

ARF!
A CHILD'S IMAGINATION IS A WONDERFUL THING. MYRTLE BELIEVES THAT DOG CAN REALLY TALK!
MY FATHER SURE LEADS A DOG'S LIFE, BUT I GUESS THAT'S WHAT YOU'D EXPECT!
WHICH ONE OF YOU SAID THAT?

JOE PALOOKA — On Deck — By Ham Fisher

SAY- YOU FELLAS BETTER PUT ON YOUR ROBES. YOU CAN GET A CHILL OUT HERE---
-AN' YOU'RE ALL SWEATED UP---- W-WHY WHERE'S---- WHY I THO'T THEY FOLLOWED ME---
YESSIR.
THEY PROBLY STOPPED BELOW T'GRAB SOME CLOTHES---WELL--- I WONDER WHERE THAT WOLF PACK IS---

JANE ARDEN — New Clews — By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

SO THAT BLACKMAIL NOTE WAS PREPARED RIGHT HERE IN THIS HOTEL—
AND WANDA KNEW SOMETHING WAS ABOUT TO HAPPEN —SHE PHONED ME FOR HELP—
WHOEVER SENT THAT NOTE PROBABLY SET A DEAD-LINE— AND THE TIME WAS ABOUT UP!
MAYBE—WHAT'S THIS ON THE BLOTTER—IT ISN'T INK—COULD IT BE GLUE?
WHAT'S THAT? WHAT ARE YOU DRIVING AT?

SUPERMAN — Hear Superman 5:45 P.M. Today—WOL — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

WHAT ABOUT THE MAN IN THE MOON, UNCLE SUPERMAN? CAN'T WE DO SOMETHING ABOUT HIS LONELINESS?
OH, SURE, SUSIE! I'LL PAY HIM A VISIT EVERY ONCE IN A WHILE--AND TALK THINGS OVER! AND YOU CAN COME, TOO!
NOW, LET'S PUT THESE STRAY ELEVATORS BACK IN PLACE AGAIN!
THERE, THE LAST ONE! NOW I CAN RELAX!
WHAT A STORY! I CAN'T WAIT UNTIL I GET TO MY TYPEWRITER!
DON'T FORGET TO GIVE SUSIE CREDIT! IT WAS SHE WHO CALLED THE UPSIDE-DOWN RESERVOIR AND THE ASCENDING ELEVATORS TO MY ATTENTION!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride

WINNIE WINKLE — It Sounds Important — By Branner

THAT WILL RELIEVE THE RED CROSS OF A RESPONSIBILITY--
IT WILL ALSO RELIEVE THE RECIPIENTS OF YOUR LARGESSE, OF BEWILDERMENT! YOU MUST ADMIT, DAISY, YOUR KNITTING IS UNPREDICTABLE!!
IT WAS NICE OF TH' BOSS TO PRAISE ME LIKE THAT--OR---um-- WAS HE PRAISIN' ME ??!!!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED — By Zane Grey

SO, ZERO, YOU THINK DARKNESS WILL PROVE I AM THE 'GLOWING GHOST'...OKAY...
SUDDENLY, IN THE BLACKENED CABIN ONE FIGURE RADIATES THE GREENISH HUE OF THE "GLOWING GHOST!"

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — By Saunders and Woggon

BUT, SUDDENLY, FROM ITS HIDING PLACE IN HIS BLOUSE, GENERAL DeVALLE WHIPS OUT THE GESTAPO AGENTS LUGER AND FIRES TWICE, POINT BLANK!
GRAN'PERE! THE OTHER SOLDIERS ARE RUNNING BACK!
I SHALL HOLD THEM OFF, UNTIL MY AMMUNITION IS GONE! TAKE THE AMERICAN SPIES TO THE SECRET CAVE!--IT IS A COMMAND! GO!!
